Raging Mississippi River Spreads Over New Areas

Missiles Expected

Ways To Hanoi Closely Watched, Says McCloskey

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rail and sea approaches to the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi are under close U.S. surveillance for the expected delivery of Soviet antiaircraft missiles.

U. S. officials made this known Friday shortly after the State Department disclosed that a surface-to-air missile—SAM—site appears to be in preparation near Hanoi.

EVIDENCE LACKING

Press officer Robert J. McCloskey said there have been Soviet personnel in North Viet Nam for some time; but there is no direct evidence, he said, that they are working on the launching site.

Photo reconnaissance planes found indications a launching site with six launch pads, is under construction. It is understood a high-flying U2 plane first spotted the work on April 5.

The State Department did not confirm the presence of SAMs, but other sources noted that Moscow, Peking and Hanoi have trumpeted for months that such reinforcements would be made.

The SAM missile is a two-stage rocket that has an outward range of about 35 miles and can reach up 80,000 to 100,000 feet. They are believed to have brought down at least two U2 planes which have an operational ceiling higher than the fighter-bombers being used in the strikes against North Viet Nam.

U.S. officials have found some indication that delivery of Soviet missiles is behind schedule, and may have been held up by Communist China. These sources said the 650-mile-long, single-track rail line from Canton to Hanoi provides the only direct land link for delivery of the Soviet missiles.

The rail line would be vulnerable to U.S. bombing attacks but the 33.7-foot-long SAMs presumably could be air-lifted in a pinch.

American officials are careful in weighing the significance of the missile development.

The question is to what extent the Soviet Union will commit itself to the defense of North Viet Nam.

Some U.S. experts look upon Soviet pledges of support to Hanoi as a competition with Communist China for prestige, rather than as an indication of Communist solidarity.

The Russians are believed to have equipped Communist China with the high-powered antiaircraft missiles that shot down both U.S. and Chinese Nationalist U2 planes.

World's Fair Gets Nation's Vital Papers

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's most precious documents, a record of America's heritage, were safely stored Friday night at the N.Y. World's Fair, after a delicate, secret and massively guarded transfer from Washington.

Among them are the historic copies of the Bill of Rights, the Emancipation Proclamation, the Gettysburg Address, John F. Kennedy's first inaugural address, Washington's inaugural and farewell addresses, and Franklin D. Roosevelt's Four Freedoms speech. Also included are swords, books, maps, paintings and engravings left behind by a dozen presidents.

IDEA OF JFK

The epic transfer grew out of an idea of the late President Kennedy. It was he who first moved to bring the collection together in Washington. His successor, President Johnson, followed up.

Last March 29, the collection was ready for shipment to New York. But, meanwhile, a wild plot to blow up the Statue of Liberty and the Washington Monument had been uncovered. Unprecedented security precautions were deemed even more imperative.

At 8 a.m. of that day, Treasury Department armored trucks pulled up to the Library of Congress and the National Archives exhibition hall. With Treasury agents and special guards aswarm, in constant radio touch with Treasury headquarters, the collection was moved to a rear gate of Washington's Union State and placed aboard a regular Pennsylvania Railroad train, the Senator. It left at 10 a.m. and arrived at New York's Penn Station at 1:00 p.m.

Again, armored trucks waited. Heavily guarded, they moved crosstown and uptown through heavy Monday afternoon mid-Manhattan traffic. Their destination was the Chase Manhattan Bank branch on Rockefeller Plaza. There the collection was placed in the main vault.

Tahiti Edifice Closing Asked

PARIS (UPI)—France told the United States Friday to close its consulate on Tahiti in a new move in a U.S.-French "little cold war" in the South Pacific.

The Tahitian capital of Papeete, site of the U.S. consulate, is base headquarters for France's future H-bomb testing range under construction on Mururoa a toll, 1250 miles to the southeast.

The French action was the latest in a series of measures restricting operations of Americans in the neighborhood of Tahiti. U.S. officials believed these moves stemmed from French reluctance to have too many Americans in the Pacific H-bomb testing area.

French Foreign Office note handed to the U.S. Embassy here informed the United States that a previous "agreement in principle" for establishment of a U.S. consulate at Papeete had been cancelled.

Miss Frances Deas Parrish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Parrish, 602 Cole, Monroe, has been elected to serve the student body of Centenary College of Louisiana in Shreveport as independent women's representative on the Student Senate.

A 1964 graduate of Neville High School, she is a freshman chemistry major at the college. Miss Parrish will assume her duties as representative to the student governing body in the fall.

Both have been assigned to a technical school in the communications field at Norfolk, Va. Both attended Ouachita Parish High School before going into service.

NICHOLAS KATZENBACH
. . . Issues New Rules

Editors Get Katzenbach News Order

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new Justice Department order to govern federal officers in giving news about criminal cases was received Friday without strong objection by the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach announced the code in a speech at the society's annual convention. He said that, in general, the order merely formalized rules now observed by U.S. marshals, FBI agents, and the department's lawyers and prosecutors.

REPORT ENDORSED

Only two days ago the society's board of directors endorsed unanimously a special committee's report rejecting any regulations that would "black out large areas of information" between the time a defendant is arrested and when he is tried.

But when the attorney general ended his talk, Alfred Friendly, chairman of the committee, told the convention that the moderate policy chosen by Katzenbach appears to "conform 1,000 per cent" with the committee view.

"It surely is a policy that we ought to be able to live with and cooperate with," said Friendly, managing editor of the Washington Post.

Katzenbach said the department's list of do's and don'ts is the result of six months' study. The policy chosen, he said, seems to be consistent with the public's right to full information and the department's obligation to see that pre-trial publicity does not impair a defendant's right to a fair trial by an unprejudiced jury.

He told the 450 editors: "The first consideration, I believe, is that it is not for us to regulate the conduct or the content of the press.

"We, whether in the Department of Justice or in the bar, are hardly the exclusive keepers of the keys to the kingdom of justice."

The editors peppered the attorney general with questions, but none entered a blanket objection. The editor who spoke most critically of proposed curbs on crime coverage, Felix R. McKnight of the Dallas Times Herald, said he accepted Katzenbach's approach, in the main.

Seoul Police Again Battle Student Riots

SEOUL, (UPI) — Some 300 black-uniformed students stormed the gates of the central government building today in the fifth consecutive day of anti-government riots over plans to normalize Japanese-Korean relations. Students and police battled outside the building.

Police said about 475 university students were arrested Friday in riots near two universities. The government rushed three battalions of combat troops into the South Korean capital to help quell the violent disorders. Some 54 policemen were injured, 27 seriously.

PROTEST JAPAN

The students are protesting moves by President Park Chung Hee to reach a diplomatic settlement with Japan of issues stemming from the Japanese colonial rule of Korea from 1911 until the end of World War II.

One 20-year-old student died Friday night of head injuries. Police claimed he suffered his wounds in a quarrel with other students. But charges of "police brutality" were hurled at the police.

The renewed demonstrations today started with a march by hundreds of high school students who then moved on the government building.

Police rushed up to stop the students at the gates. Police reinforcements were sped to the scene. And they forced the students back.

It was feared that more riots would occur later today when opposition political parties hold a joint mass rally at the Hochang football stadium.

Vice Defense Minister Kang Suh Ryong announced that three battalions of army troops had moved into Seoul to begin controlling the demonstrations.

Earlier, 300 rifle carrying combat soldiers rushed to an eastern suburb where 2,000 students of Hanyang and Kungook universities had overpowered 300 riot police.

It was the first time troops had been called in to quell student rioting since last June when even large demonstrations caused the Park Chung Hee regime to clamp martial law on the capital.

The troops sent into the capital did not immediately go into action. They remained in the background while police reinforcements waded into the crowd of students, swinging truncheons and firing tear gas. Students fought back with clubs they had seized from police.

For Flood Work

Minnesota Teens Win Public Praise

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — They've redefined the word "teen-ager" along Minnesota's flooding rivers. Now, the definition comes out "hero."

Volunteers manning sand trucks, bulldozers and boats have come from all walks of life. But often as not, the pitching of sandbags has been handled by teen-agers.

In Stillwater, on the flooding St. Croix River, a four-foot sign proclaims the city's pride. Perched on a levee, it says "Teen-Agers Dike."

"We couldn't have built that dike without them," said Mayor Dean Charlsen. "Take Wednesday night as an example. When we ran out of bags after 11, there were only a dozen kids on the dike. But when more bags arrived I'm sure there were 200 here within 15 minutes to fill them."

It's been the same along the Minnesota River, starting in Mankato more than a week ago where college and high school students were in the vanguard when volunteers braced against the river.

It was the same in Chaska last weekend when a long line of youngsters pitched sacks of sand, hand-to-hand, to danger points around the courthouse.

It's been Easter vacation for the past week for many students, although along the rivers schools were closed to free youths for flood duty.

A Minneapolis television commentator said the other night that all this praise wasn't necessary. He added that teen-agers are basically good and no one should consider it so remarkable that they helped.

The Minnesota Legislature noted their sacrifice and hard work and passed a resolution praising the young people.

Labor union groups, college fraternities, church groups and others all have formed volunteer brigades to bring busloads of help to where needed, so the praise has to be shared.

As for the kids themselves, they seem to thrive on hard work and long hours.

At Stillwater, a 10-year-old had become a knowledgeable sand shoveler after two nights of work. He described one of the fruits of his labors thusly:

"I've been living on potato chips and coffee.

"I can't drink coffee at home."

150 U.S. Planes Attack Bridges In N. Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — About 150 U.S. warplanes attacked six bridges in the central sector of North Viet Nam and spokesmen said Friday the strikes were a complete success.

"We got three and the Air Force got three," a Navy officer said.

Disruption of Communist traffic is one aim of the American air raids, now in their third month. The over-all object, as proclaimed in Saigon and Washington, is to induce Hanoi's Red regime to drop its support of the Viet Cong in South Viet Nam. Cutting highways and railway lines could slow the flow of recruits and supplies.

Within South Viet Nam, there was action aground.

Supported by bombers and artillery, Vietnamese troops sought to trap two Viet Cong companies in a fight about 280 miles northeast of Saigon in Binh Dinh Province. U.S. military spokesmen said 51 Viet Cong were killed in the opening of this operation Thursday. Government losses were reported as one killed and 31 wounded.

A fleet of 67 U.S. and Vietnamese helicopters lifted Vietnamese troops into a jungle area of Tay Ninh Province, 65 miles northwest of Saigon, that was the target Thursday of the biggest air raid of the war.

Long considered a Communist stronghold, the area had been hit by 230 planes which dumped 1,000 tons of bombs.

By Millions

World Christians Observe Friday

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

From the cobbled streets of ancient Jerusalem to Christendom's most majestic cathedrals, millions of Christians observed Good Friday to commemorate the agony of Jesus.

Thousands of Christian pilgrims streamed into Rome and the Holy Land to spend the closing days of Holy Week and the long austerity of Lent in these two hallowed places. The solemn commemoration ends Easter in joyous acclamation of the Resurrection.

THRONG CHURCH

While worshipers in the Jordanian sector of Jerusalem thronged the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, traditionally held as the site of Christ's marble tomb, Jews in neighboring Israel and around the world ushered in at sundown the week-long festival of Passover.

At family seder feasts they retold the story of the Israelite exodus from Egypt more than 3,000 years ago, and consumed matzoh, the traditional unleavened bread to symbolize the haste of the flight.

In Rome, Pope Paul VI removed his shoes and prostrated himself before a crucifix in a sunset service in the Basilica of St. Mary Major to lead the world's half-billion Roman Catholics in Good Friday services.

Stricken from the Good Friday prayers at the Pope's request were references that Jews and other non-Catholics have considered hostile.

Pope Paul ended his six hours of worship on the "dies amaritudinis"— the "day of bitterness" as Good Friday is sometimes called—by walking in a penitential torchlight Way of the Cross around the Colosseum.

Good Friday services were held in churches throughout the United States.

In Britain, John Cardinal Heenan led thousands of Roman Catholics in Good Friday devotions in London's Trafalgar Square. Robed actors played out Christ's passion on the base of Lord Nelson's column.

Only the roar of a doubledecker bus was heard when the cardinal called on the massed thousands to join in silent prayer at 3 o'clock, the hour of Jesus' death.

Another milestone in interfaith relations was marked in Winchester, 60 miles southwest of London, when a Roman Catholic priest preached in an Anglican cathedral for the first time since Henry VIII split off the Church of England from Rome.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. S. Joseph Mullarkey of the Portsmouth Roman Catholic Diocese preached to a congregation of 2,000 including Anglicans, Roman Catholics and adherents of most Protestant denominations. Later they wound through the streets of Winchester in a great procession.

Mild Weather Forecast Today

Another mild day in which to pursue outdoor activities has been forecast today for the Twin Cities.

Highest today will range between 76 and 82, with mostly clear skies, and the lowest tonight between 52 and 56.

SUNNY

Unless the picture weatherwise changes, Easter Sunday in the Twin Cities will be partly cloudy and warm.

Friday's high was 74, which was recorded between 3 and 4 p.m., and the low of 48 registered between 3 and 6 p.m.

The precipitation was recorded by FAA at Selman Field and no rain is indicated on the weather map through Sunday.

Winds will be variable five to 15 miles per hour.

West Alaska Feels Sharp Earthquake

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — A sharp earthquake hit the Norton Sound area of western Alaska at 1:24 p.m. Alaska Standard Time — 6:24 p.m. EST — Friday, the U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey reported.

SECOND IN ROW

It was the second year in a row that Alaska has had an earthquake on Good Friday.

But the survey office here said this one measured only between 5 and 6 on the Richter scale on its seismograph. The one last March 27, which killed 115 persons in south-central Alaska, registered 8.3.

There were no immediate reports of casualties or damage from Friday's quake.

The first report of it came by radio to the Northern Commercial Co. of Fairbanks from its representative in Unalakleet, about 330 miles from here on the shore of the sound. The survey said its seismograph showed the center of the quake was 425 miles west of here, which would be in the sound.

Lester Bronson, Civil Defense director for northwest Alaska at Nome, said the temblor rattled dishes and windows there but that there were no reports of damage.

He said it was the second time within a week the area had been jolted by an earthquake.

In Missouri Town

Starlings Blamed For Lung Disease

DEXTER, Mo. (AP) — About 93 per cent of more than 1,000 persons tested in the starling-plagued town of Dexter show positive reactions to histoplasmosis, a lung disease.

Dr. S. B. Beecher, district officer for the State Division of Health, made the tests in this southeast Missouri community of 5,519 persons

Dr. Beecher and Dr. Fred Tosh of the U.S. Public Health Service blame a 20-acre area where an estimated million starlings roost during the winter. The roost is located near the city's schools and the Elder Manufacturing Co., where the tests were made.

"There were 1,114 positive reactions out of 1,198 persons tested," Dr. Beecher says. "This does not mean that the 1,114 have histoplasmosis now but they have been infected at some time in their life."

"In some isolated cases," says Dr. Tosh, "histopolasmosis can be fatal if no treatment is received."

Dr. Tosh estimated the death rate at one per 1,000 cases if no treatment is given. He said that antibiotics now available can cure the disease.

He says a histoplasmosis epidemic in Mason City, Iowa, in the summer of 1962 "resulted in one or two deaths." Dr. Tosh said that the disease in Mason City was traced to a starling roost, similar but not as large as the one in Dexter.

Dexter Mayor Melvin Gainer said it had been decided to treat the roost area with a formaldehyde solution recommended by Dr. Beecher and Dr. Tosh.

The doctors said the solution would kill the histopolasmosis fungus which finds a ready habitat in the bird droppings. Spores from the fungus are scattered over an area by the wind.

Dr. Tosh said solution was used in Mason City to kill the fungus in the ground at a nesting area along a creek. Then, the nesting area was removed.

At Dexter, the situation is different.

"If we remove the nesting forest," says Gainer, "we have been told the starlings might find another roost around Dexter."

"The birds must be eliminated, one way or the other," he says.

No action was taken to destroy the birds last winter and Gainer said what would be done after the birds return this fall still has not been decided.

Don May, conservation agent for Stoddard County, said the State Conservation Commission had given the city permission to rid themselves of the birds "anyway they can."

Flood Deals More Blows In 3 States

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Raging waters of the flooding Mississippi River and tributary streams spread over new areas Friday, causing more evacuation of lowland residents and creating new destruction.

Along a 400-mile stretch of the Mississippi from Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn., to south of Hannibal, Mo., thousands of volunteers labored to bulwark dikes against the worst spring flooding on record.

SPREADS SOUTHWARD

The number of persons already driven from homes on the Red River of the north in North Dakota and on the Mississippi in Minnesota and Wisconsin was estimated at between 30,000 and 35,000, with hundreds of new evacuations occurring in Illinois, Iowa, and Missouri as the flood spread southward.

At least 12 deaths, 10 in Minnesota and two in Wisconsin, were attributed to the flood. Property damage from the surging waters was estimated at well above $20 million in Minnesota alone. There was no estimate of dollar losses elsewhere.

In Minnesota, present center of the flooding, cresting of the Mississippi at record highs at Minneapolis and St. Paul was delayed until about Tuesday.

The Weather Bureau, which earlier had forecast peak levels would be reached Friday night or today, said freezing weather had halted temporarily the melting of snow and ice along the upper reaches of the Mississippi and feeder streams.

In St. Paul, the river's rolling water, choked with ice and debris, ripped a wooden bridge from its moorings in a lowland section.

Most of St. Paul's business establishments and homes are on high ground and regarded as safe from flooding. Some industries and a number of homes in lowland sections, however, are under five to six feet of water.

Reinforced and raised dikes in areas of St. Paul were reported leaking in scores of places.

Most of Minneapolis was considered safe.

Downstream, however, scores of Minnesota communities facing inundation fought the rising water with sandbagged levees.

Thousands of additional families in the path of the flood were reported leaving their homes in southern Minnesota and northern Wisconsin.

In Wisconsin, the Red Cross predicted more than 14,000 persons in 15 counties would have to be evacuated.

At La Crosse, Wis., the Mississippi crept past the 15.3 level, surpassing the previous record by more than two feet. Some flooding has occurred in La Crosse but city officials were hopeful its dikes would hold back most of the flood. A crest of 19 to 20 feet is expected early next week.

About 1,200 persons already have been evacuated from low areas around La Crosse. Evacuations also were occurring at Prairie du Chien, about 60 miles south of La Crosse.

In Illinois and Iowa, preparations to combat the approaching flood were stepped up as predicted crests of the Mississippi were revised a foot or more above earlier forecasts.

The possibility of higher crests threatened more extensive flooding of Rock Island, Moline, and East Moline, Ill., and Davenport, Iowa, all close together.

Adopt Resolution

Sheriffs Support Two-Terms Bill

BATON ROUGE (Special) — The Louisiana Sheriffs Association went on record Friday in favor of permitting Gov. John J. McKeithen to succeed himself.

The association adopted a resolution declaring that it felt the change was of "such importance that it should take a public position."

Members resolved that "changes in the political, social and economic conditions existing in Louisiana have removed the objections to a governor to succeed himself."

The association also urged the Legislature to take action in the May fiscal session.

A bill is expected to be offered in the fiscal session, but it would take a three-fourths vote for introduction. Final passage would require a two-thirds vote.

Fiscal sessions are for fiscal matters.

McKeithen has said that he is not pushing the bill, but would consider running for re-election in 1967 if it passed. As a constitutional amendment it would be preseented to the people for approval in a general election.

At present the constitution restricts a governor from serving two consecutive terms. More

Sheriff F. O. Didier of Avoyelles Parish offered the resolution passed by the sheriffs' association convention here.

The group also approved a resolution asking the legislature to raise salaries of sheriffs under a schedule to be worked out later.

Sheriff Bailey Grant of Ouachita Parish, president of the association, said the request would be made at the fiscal session next month.

The association also supported proposed legislation to permit sheriffs to negotiate for liability insurance to cover lawsuits arising from alleged false arrests, unwarranted brutality and such matters.

He said insurance firms would be reluctant to write such policies if there was a risk involving a particular deputy.

The resolution calls for the assistance of Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion and State Insurance Commissioner Dudley Guglielmo in working out the insurance plan.

Another resolution approved gave support to a proposal to expand the Orleans Parish jail facilities.

The association voted to hold its next convention in Opelououas, with St. Landry Sheriff D. J. Doucet as host.

Seven Youths Draw Crowd For Protest

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Seven disheveled youths walked into the austere diplomatic lobby of the State Department Friday and after a while finally drew a crowd to hear their protests against the war in Viet Nam.

They planned to stay until arrested or ejected, and the department was not immediately inclined to order either.

When they entered, the youths looked the place over, then held a huddled strategy conference next to the elevator. They walked to the center of the lobby, formed an uneven line, side by side, and unrolled posters attacking U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

The posters said "Get out of Viet Nam"; "Stop U.S. aggression"; "Freedom now in Viet Nam"; "Allow free elections in Viet Nam"; and "Why are we burning, torturing, killing the people of Viet Nam to prevent free elections?"

The leader identified himself as Richard Thoreau, 26, who said he was a student at the University of Maryland. He said his group represented the "Washington Committee for the Right to Vote in Alabama and Viet Nam."

While this was going on, another group—the "Students for a Democratic Society" — was making plans for a massive "march on Washington" today to protest U.S. Vietnamese policy.

Paul Booth, march coordinator for the society, said 10,000 persons were expected in town. He based the estimate on the number of charter busses coming to the capital from around the country, and on the number of tickets sold on a special train that will bring demonstrators here from New York this morning.

The demonstration is designed to protest what the society calls the "anti-popular, illegal and doomed war in Viet Nam."

By Parish Police Jury

Industrial Districts Meeting Set May 3

The proposal to establish industrial districts in Ouachita Parish will be discussed by Director William Hackett of the Department of Commerce and Industry at a police jury meeting here May 3.

Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp., Commercial Solvents and Columbian Carbon have asked the police jury to place their plants in such districts for future service tax exemptions.

Thus far the police jury has not taken any action. A protest hearing on Columbian Carbon's request is still pending.

"Mr. Hackett is coming May 3 to explain the new act to the Police Jury," said Hamm. "Then we're supposed to go and inspect the areas involved."

The Legislature last summer passed the industrial district act as part of Gov. John J. McKeithen's industrial inducement program designed to give industry tax relief.

Olin Mathieson filed the first request locally, possibly the first in the state under the new act. Protest hearings were held on the requests by Olin and Commercial Solvents, but there was not any opposition voiced.

Olin's request came after the Police Jury created a fire district, which included Olins plant. To remove Olin from the fire district would take a legislative act.

Meantime, most members of the Police Jury plan to depart Sunday for the annual convention of the Louisiana Police Jury Association at New Orleans.

Jurors planning to go include Hamm, T. W. Humphries, Mrs. Bertha Kincaid, Lloyd Coon, Leland Carpenter, John Ensminger, M. W. Montgomery, A. E. Montgomery Jr., Bernie Van and Jesse Wilson.

Humphries, president from Ward 10, said today jurors attending the convention would be paid their actual expenses not exceeding $150. The Police Jury has nominated Montgomery of Ward 10 for the "Outstanding Police Juror of the Year" award which will be presented at the convention.

Also on tap are resolutions to increase jurors' per diem, but Hamm said, "Those resolutions always come up, but never pass."

Reject Cutrer Plea

Negroes Hurl Accusation At Bogalusa Police Action

BOGALUSA, La. (AP) — Negro leaders accused police of failing to control a mounting campaign of insult and harassment against civil rights pickets Friday.

The Negro pickets were pulled from midtown stores in late afternoon. They regrouped and returned after a formal complaint was filed with city officials.

The increasing tension came after Negro leaders rejected Mayor Jesse H. Cutrer's plea that an Easter recess be called in the picketing in honor of "Our Lord and Saviour."

White counterpickets, who had started marching side by side with the Negro pickets, withdrew temporarily after the mayor's plea was broadcast. They returned when the Negro pickets returned.

Some counterpickets carried Confederate flags instead of placards. The Negroes started the picketing Wednesday to back demands for equal job opportunity in the stores.

Despite sidewalk tensions along midtown Columbia Street, the general situation appeared to have eased somewhat in this southeastern Louisiana lumber mill city of 22,000 — 9,000 of them Negro.

The FBI was investigating a report that a fire bomb was thrown Thursday night at a Negro house that provided quarters for University of Kasas student volunteers last week.

Little damage was done by the fire. It was extinguished by neighbors. The FBI found the broken bottle which held the fuel used in the fire bomb.

A. Z. Young, 43, president of the Negro League, conferred privately with Mayor Cutrer at City Hall.

Young said he complained that the city ordinance forbidding unnecessarily loud, offensive, insulting language was not enforced against the whites.

He said even some city policemen joined bystanders in jeering Negro pickets or making loud, contemptuous remarks. He said Cutrer told him an investigation would be made.

Police Chief Claxton Knight said a full investigation of the Negro complaint against police showed all reports were negative.

"We had 30 officers along that one block throughout the day," he said. "In addition, there were some state police and the FBI was observing."

Although some city patrolmen plainly chafed under their responsibility, some were stern with potential trouble-makers.

One told a white man who blocked a sidewalk, "I don't care if you're green, I got my orders." When the white man had asked why the officer didn't jump on the Negroes, the policeman replied, "Because they're keeping their mouth shut."

Wilfred T. Ussery, San Francisco, national vice chairman of the Congress of Racial Equality, acknowledged that the league had a militant mainly teen-aged element that was pushing for bigger demonstrations than the leaders deem wise.

Ussery delivered to the mayor several typewritten copies of the league's request for a conference with top political, business and civic officials to solve racial problems at the negotiating table "rather than in the streets."

U.S. Contests Homestead Try On Florida Reef

MIAMI (Special) — Louis M. Ray, 51, Monroe, faces a federal attempt to evict him from homesteading on a Florida reef.

Ray, the government says in a Miami action, Tuesday put up a prefabricated metal building on one of two homemade islands on Triumph Reef, about six miles offshore from the Florida mainland.

Ray claims the underwater land is public land eligible for homesteading. Using a barge, workers hired by Ray dropped into the reef waters two cylinders made of steel plates and measuring 45 to 50 feet across and sticking a few feet above the water. The water at that point is five to six feet deep.

Sand was poured into the cylinders, making the islands.

Last week the government failed in an attempt to obtain a court order to stop Ray.

Asst. U.S. District Attorney Aaron Foosaner in Miami said after Ray put up the shack that he would try in federal court Monday to stop Ray's project on grounds that the underwater land is owned and operated by the federal government.

Court Orders Sheriff Clark To Refrain Posse

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — A three-judge federal court ordered Friday that Sheriff James G. Clark of Dallas County cease using members of the county posse to police racial matters.

The posse is composed of civilians, including horsemen, appointed by the sheriff as auxiliary officers. The sheriff had used them frequently during racial disturbances starting in January.

More than 2,000 persons were arrested during the months-long right-to-vote drive in the Selma area.

The court also restrained Clark and his agents from arresting, detaining under unreasonable bail "or punishing discriminatorily and without just cause, any person exercising or seeking to exercise his right to vote or to register to vote, or to use public accommodations free from racial discrimination."

Clark was also restrained from interfering with persons "organizing, meeting or assembling to discuss or advocate the exercise of their constitutional rights."

The injunction was sought by the United States Department of Justice.

"There is no question," the court said, "that the purpose of Sheriff Clark's personal actions and conduct, and also that of his agents, as herein found, was to suppress efforts by Negroes to exercise their lawful and constitutional rights."

In a separate order, U.S. Dist. Judge Daniel H. Thomas dissolved a state injunction issued by Circuit Judge James A. Hare last July 9.

Hare's injunction had banned illegal meetings, obstructing of justice, and the assembly of three or more persons on a public street or in a public place.

The injunction was directed against Negro groups such as the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, as well as against the Ku Klux Klan and other white groups.

Thomas, in three other orders, dismissed charges against 563 civil rights workers arrested in Selma by Clark and other officers.

The federal court had assumed jurisdiction of the cases on motions of attorneys for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The judge remanded to State Court at Selma the cases of 43, including those of Negro leaders Amelia Boynton and C. T. Vivian.

Mrs. Boynton was arrested Jan. 19 by Clark and charged with criminal provocation. Vivian was arrested at the Dallas County Courthouse Feb. 16 and charged with contempt of court and criminal provocation.

Also among cases remanded to State Court was that of Annie Lee Cooper, charged with assault and battery. She was accused of striking Clark while he was policing a voter registration line at the court-house Jan. 25.

Cases in which charges were dismissed included charges of refusing to disperse on orders of an officer, remaining present at a place of unlawful assembly, parading without a permit, and violation of a state statute.

The three-judge panel noted that between June 1961 and February of this year, 1,828 white persons applied to register and 1,465 were accepted. It said during the same period, 1,148 Negroes applied to the Dallas County Board of Registrars and 214 were registered as voters.

Beacon Placed At Area Airport

COLUMBIA (Special) — A modern beacon light has been installed at the Caldwell Parish airport, located just off U.S. Highway 165, about a mile north of Columbia.

Also installed were lights lining the 3500-ft. runway, thus making it easy for any aircraft to land on the strip at night.

The airport was completed earlier this year by the Louisiana Department of Public Works and is used quite often on visits to Columbia by Gov. John J. McKeithen.

James Bond, Then Some

Secret Agent Minus Mask, Attache Case

NEW YORK (AP) — Secret agent extraordinary Tom Romano was everything the fictional James Bond ever was, and then some — until fate stripped him of his attache case and his masquerade. Now he is just plain Thomas Catizone, a Brooklyn truck mechanic, facing two years in federal prison.

It all began in January 1962, when Catizone, 35, a rugged, 6 feet 2 and 220 pounds, met a brunette divorcee, Laura Darris, 41, who operated a small restaurant near the garage where he worked.

Catizone introduced himself as Tom Romano of the Central Intelligence Agency, leader of a five-man American espionage squad. He came complete with pistol and attache case — the latter stuffed, he said, with treaties he was bringing back to Washington from South Viet Nam.

Mrs. Darris was no end impressed by Catizone's tales of piloting a spy plane, similar to the U2 which was shot down over the Soviet Union. She shivered in admiration over Catizone's hair-raising exploits with gun and attache case in Algeria and Cyprus.

On their dates, there never was any dearth of conversation — from Catizone at least. Within two months, their friendship had blossomed to the point where Mrs. Darris gave Catizone $1,000 for the family of a young mechanic who was killed in the explosion of Catizone's plane while preparing it for a secret government mission.

In May 1962, Catizone's tale of a former wife who was threatening to wreck his CIA career led Mrs. Darris to hand over $2,000 for back alimony.

Then, to Mrs. Darris' consternation, tragedy overtook the doughty CIA agent. He telephoned that an auto accident outside Washington had killed a fellow agent and left him paralyzed from the waist down.

He, ah, needed — well, this time it cost Mrs. Darris $1,025. The G-note was for the hard-hearted ex-wife. The $25 was cigarette money for the crippled Catizone.

Several days later, heralded by the siren of an ambulance, a pitiful sight confronted the divorcee. Into her apartment, two attendants bore Catizone on a stretcher. After a brief visit, with a wan wave of the hand, Catizone was borne supinely away — the whole caper having cost him $60 to hire the ambulance and attendants. Mrs. Darris never saw agent Tom Romano again.

She did hear from him, however — in February 1963, when he telephoned her that he and another agent were the only survivors of seven American frogmen who had undertaken a dangerous underwater mission to Cuba.

In September 1963, Mrs. Darris received an anonymous telephone call from a woman, who gave her the agent's home phone number. She dialed it and got Mrs. Catizone on the wire — not an ex-wife but a very present wife.

Before they could get down to really serious woman-to-woman talk, Catizone took the phone and told Mrs. Darris to get lost or he would have her "taken care of."

Disillusioned at last, Mrs. Darris went to the feds with the whole incredible story. The FBI took over from there. They found out Mrs. Darris was only one of four feminine admirers of agent Tom Romano.

Whenever one of the admirers phoned Catizone at his garage, he would have a coworker race a truck engine. Then he would explain to the caller that he had no time to talk, that the engine of his airplane was being revved up for a quick takeoff on a cloak-and-dagger mission.

Friday, in federal court, following a nonjury trial, Judge Thomas F. Murphy gave Catizone two years in prison for masquerading as a CIA agent. He continued the mechanic free in $2,500 bail for an appeal from evidence Murphy called "overwhelming."

Truck mechanic Catizone walked out of the courtroom after sentencing, leaving behind him the courageous shade of secret agent extraordinary Tom Romano, greatest fictional gift to the legend of undercover adventure since Ian Fleming in-

Business Sees One Of Happier Easter Weeks

NEW YORK (UPI) — This certainly was one of the happiest Easter weeks in history for American business.

The Commerce Department reported the nation's output of goods and services during the first quarter of 1965 made its biggest jump in more than three years. Moreover, the department said the huge gain was accompanied by only moderate price rises. The jump for the quarter was about $14.5 billion and put the gross national product on a seasonally-adjusted annual rate of $649 billion.

The week brought a flood of reports of record or near record earnings and sales for the first quarter from major corporations.

The government also disclosed that non- farm employment rose in March by 360,000 —about 225,000 more than expected on a normal seasonal basis.

But the late spring cold wave caused total retail sales to decline about 1 per cent in March although in many localities retail stores found business quite brisk. Total retail sales also declined 2 per cent the first week in April.

One severe cloud remained on the business horizon—the continuing threat of a major steel strike. The steel industry press continued to take the line that a strike is inevitable unless a drastic change occurs in the negotiations. I. W. Abel, the apparent winner in the still disputed United Steelworkers election, joined in the negotiations at Pittsburgh as co-chairman.

Price Appointed To Dairy Month Advisory Group

L. L. Price, chairman of the Department of Agriculture at Northeast Louisiana State College, has been appointed to the state advisory committee for National Dairy Month. The appointment was made by Dave L. Pearce, state commissioner of agriculture, who is serving as chairman for June Dairy Month.

The advisory committee will meet at Baton Rouge on Wednesday (April 21) to lay plans for participation in the nationwide promotion of dairy products.

Pearce said in his letter to committee members many of Louisiana's citizens, particularly teenagers, are not consuming the amount of milk they need for a nutritionally balanced diet. Last year, the per capita consumption of fluid milk in Louisiana was about 66 per cent of the national average.

"For the sake of better health and a stronger Louisiana economy, let's work together and sell more milk," he urged.

Equal Taxation Bill Endorsed By Wholesalers

WASHINGTON (Special) — Rep. Tom Curtis has proposed a bill to gain tax equality between co - ops and their private business competitors, which has been indorsed by the National Association of Wholesalers.

In a special bulletin to all members, the association urged them to back the Curtis move which will make the corporation income tax full applicable to most cooperatives in the same way that it now applies to all business corporations.

The NAW said the only exemptions that would be continued would be for some very small, informal cooperatives that do not buy for inventory or engage management to carry on their activities.

"Under the provisions of Mr. Curtis' bill, co-ops would no longer be able to accumulate late tax savings for capital expansion to the detriment of their fully-taxed wholesale and other business competitors," the NAW said.

The association also pointed out that among other things the bill would simplify tax collection procedures with all corporations being treated alike, and that it would bring in badly needed new tax revenues.

"It would also correct a competitive injustice that has existed in the tax laws of the nation for over half a century," the NAW said.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The administrator of Sara Mayo Hospital, charged by the NAACP with discriminatory practices, said Friday applications have been sent to Negro doctors. She said none were returned.

The 105-bed private hospital, along with Touro Infirmary in New Orleans, is among 36 hospitals in six Southern states against which the NAACP filed charges of discriminatory practice Thursday.

NLSC Pharmacy School

Research Project Grant Is Received

Dr. Clyde C. Whitworth, assistant professor in the School of Pharmacy at Northeast Louisiana State College, has been awarded a $1,000 grant for undergraduate research by the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy. The grant is one of eight made throughout the nation.

Known as the Mead Johnson Awards, these grants are sponsored by Mead Johnson Laboratories of Evansville, Ind., and are designed to encourage pharmacy majors to enter graduate study. The student conducting the research receives $800 and the School of Pharmacy will be given $200 for supplies and equipment needed for the project.

Dr. Whitworth, who submitted the research proposal to the AACP, will direct the project. The student engaged in the research will be Loudon D. Yantis of Zachary, who will be a pharmacy senior next year.

Yantis will work under Dr. Whitworth's direction on "An In-Vivo Study of the Effect of Certain Additives on the Absorption of Drugs from Solutions." Frogs will be used in the research, Dr. Whitworth indicated.

The student investigator is an outstanding scholar and holder of an American Foundation for Pharmaceutical Education Scholarship at Northeast.

Poem By Senior At Northeast To Be Published

A Northeast Louisiana State College senior has been notified of acceptance of poetry for publication in the spring issue of national collegiate quarterly magazine.

A poem by David Walter, son of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Walter of 200 Balboa Dr., Monroe, will be published in the forthcoming issue of The Rectangle, the magazine of Sigma Tau Delta national honorary fraternity in English. The poem is entitled "Nature's Death."

Walter is an English education major at Northeast. A 1962 graudate of Ouachita Parish High School, he won national writing publication awards, the Reporter's Club and FBLA Award during his senior year there.

Holder of a T. H. Harris Scholarship at Northeast, he was the 1964 winner of the NLSC Social Science Club Essay Contest. He is also vice president of the Northeast chapter of Sigma Tau Delta and a member of Omicron Delta Kappa national men's leadership fraternity and the Student Louisiana Teachers' Association.

Germans Make Final Payment

JERUSALEM (AP) — West Germany has made the final payment in its $860-million reparations agreement with Israel, informed sources said Friday.

The last installment amounted to $75 million. Most of the reparations under the 13-year-old agreement have been taken in the form of West German goods.

Neither the Israeli government nor the Israeli press had any comment on the final payment.

In an interview over the Israeli radio, Dr. Felix Shinnar, head of Israel's purchasing in Cologne, said the reparations paid for construction of 49 Israeli merchant ships and equipment and machinery for 500 Israeli industrial enterprises.

The agreement was signed between Israel and West Germany in Luxembourg in 1952. At the time the agreement provoked considerable soul-searching among Israelis as to whether they should accept any "blood money" for sufferings of Jews under the Nazis before and during World War II.

Peking Opposes Red Cross Meet

TOKYO (AP) — Red China has notified the International Red Cross that it will not attend its 20th international conference in Vienna unless an invitation to Nationalist China is canceled.

Peking said protests were lodged in notes April 11 to Andre Francois-Poncet, chairman of the standing commission of the International Red Cross Society.

To Move Deadline

Union, Steel Management Divided On Cash Terms

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The United Steelworkers Union and the steel industry are far apart on cash terms for an iterim agreement to remove the threat of a May 1 stroke, union sources said Friday.

"That nickel was a slap in the face," said one top union negotiator.

He referred to an industry offer Thursday to grant an immediate five-cent hourly hike in wages or benefits in return for an extension of from 60 days to six months.

The union has not actually told the industry how much money it wants. But sources said that it wants about 16 cents in either wages or benefits.

The length of an extension or interim agreement apparently is not a problem.

"Time is not an issue. We're actually only about two months apart, which isn't much," a source said.

Talks were in recess Friday.

Pressure will mount quickly when talks resume Monday. If no agreement is in sight, the industry must start by Friday to shut down the furnaces and mills. They'll have to start adjusting shipments and scrap purchases before then.

Speculation was growing about whether and when the federal government would begin to show an active interest.

It is known that the federal Mediation and Conciliation Service in Washington has been in constant touch with some industry and union leaders.

David J. McDonald, union president, and chief industry negotiator R. Conrad Cooper both said Thursday they have had no talk with Washington.

It was learned that some top union people have made inquiries with the Labor Department and the mediation service and have found out that neither has any immediate plans to act.

In talks as critical to the economy as those in basic steel, the secretary of labor traditionally has been the one to take the initiative instead of the mediation service.

The union source said that this year, however, Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz may be reluctant to become involved with negotiations when he could be asked to investigate charges of irregularities in the steelworkers' election.

Wirtz may feel, the source said, that his impartial role as an investigator or as an election umpire could become compromised by extensive dealings now with McDonald and the man who seeks to unseat him, I.W. Abel.

McDonald and Abel, union secretary-treasurer, have been cochieftains of the union's bargaining team and sometimes its only negotiators.

Saving Cited

WASHINGTON (AP) — The general accounting office told Congress Friday the government could save as much as $1.2 million annually in shipping costs through a consolidation of federal shipping services between New Orleans and the Canal Zone.

The GAO said "unnecessary costs" amounting to at least $1.2 million a year are incurred because of duplication transportation services by the Panama Canal and the Military Sea Transportation Service.

The office noted it had recommended in 1961 that this duplication of service be eliminated but that nothing had come of the recommendation.

Two Drown

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP)—A 44-year-old Minden man and his four-year-old nephew drowned but four young girls were saved Friday after a 12-foot wooden boat capsized.

The dead were A. G. McWilliams and Randy Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hall of Minden.

Four girls, ranging in age from 11 to 15, were pulled to safety by a Bossier City youth tentatively identified as Gerry Grisham. He dived from a bridge and helped get them to the shore some 20 feet away.

The accident occurred in rough waters near the Lake Bistineau dam.

Pilots Hospitalized

Officers said Roland Harrington, 32, of Abbeville, received a possible fractured vertebrae. He was taken to a Lafayette hospital after being rushed to a Kaplan hospital.

James Barham, 29, of Alexandria, the other pilot, was in a Kaplan hospital with fractured ribs, a fractured collar bone, and a punctured ear drum, officers said.

State trooper Carlon Hebert said Harrington, who owned both planes, was flying from west to east and Barham was on a run from the opposite direction when their wings collided.

GULFPORT, Miss. (AP)—One of two men sought for unlawful flight to avoid persecution for the March 25 armed robbery of the Red Carpet casino near Biloxi has been apprehended in Tulsa, Okla., Harrison County Sheriff Edward McDonnell said here Friday.

McDonnell said he was informed by the FBI that Charles R. Jordan, 48, was taken into custody by FBI agents Thursday in Tulsa.

King Fadeout Likely

It is time for President Johnson and the federal government, the United States Supreme Court and every law-abiding, freedom-loving organization in the United States to pull Martin Luther King, Jr., self - proclaimed "king," law violator and court-order defier up short — at the end of his tether. Either this must be done or there will be a still further breakdown of law and order in this country — by King's own declaration.

Apparently, King is determined to go ahead with his plan for an economic boycott of Alabama, despite the fact that he does not have the approval of President Johnson, nor of business and industry of this country, nor of the people generally. Even the New York Times, which has helped to create the King myth as the Gandhi of America, causing him to designate himself as God's annointed "king," found it could not go along with the boycott. King has found the response to his proposal generally disapproving.

Does that discourage this Negro who has placed himself on a "throne" above President Johnson? It does not, for nothing yet has happened to deflate his ego but it may happen soon.

What has happened in Alabama and what is intended in King's proposal cannot be understood apart from a nationwide effort to create a powerful anarchist movement in the United States. The boycott is a key device used by anarchists to shatter a working economy. Every responsible citizen in the United States needs to understand how the boycott plan fits into the overall scheme of breaking down the American capitalist society. President Johnson should have condemned it immediately but he shunned an open break with the man he had looked on as the spokesmen for the Negroes. Nevertheless, the time cannot be too far away when Johnson must break with King or push him down, and the latter course is more likely.

Disapproval of the boycott proposal might well have been expected, for a boycott is a weapon that can only increase bad feeling in this country, and multiply the divisions that already exist as a result of revolutionary street action bordering on civil insurrection.

It is clear that a boycott of the kind King proposes, in which federal monies of all kinds would be withheld and which would greatly reduce the sale of Alabama products, not only in this country but in other countries, would be a terrific blow to the Negroes as well as the white people of Alabama. If all factories were to close down, there would be no work either for whites or Negroes and if there were no federal money, such as unemployment relief, coming in, many would be reduced to a state of starvation. Thus, in effect, King proposes to set up a situation in which many thousands of his own race might starve to death if the boycott were continued long enough.

How can anyone believe that King's efforts to throttle and starve the people of Alabama is a genuine movement in support of civil rights? Those efforts take on political aspects. The boycott proposal is a sinister deed.

The whole American economy is deeply inter-related with that of each individual state. Alabama's cotton and steel go into scores of products finished in other states and across the oceans. Alabama could not be made the subject of a special economic attack without attacking the whole framework of the American economic system. Businessmen, economists and wise politicians and officerholders see peril in any grave disruption by means of a boycott.

Many have wondered why some of the Alabama marchers engaged in drunkenness and lewdness. King, himself, admitted some were guilty of these acts. Undoubtedly, they were premeditated. They had a purpose, namely, to shock people, to break down established customs and to promote chaos.

It can be seen, by examining the staging of the Alabama marches, that those who plan the marches and seek huge publicity are not primarily interested in securing rights or winning real improvements for any group. They want trouble for trouble's sake. By King's own declaration, strife to the breaking point, is what he wants. They don't want a specific grievance settled and, if one is settled, they create another. They want to substitute disorder for order where possible.

King has taken steps of which President Johnson can no longer approve. He has gloatingly seemed to place himself above the President. Either this Negro agitator must be put on the downward trail by President Johnson himself, or strife and dissension and economic destruction in this country will mount.

Colleges And Parents

Ambitions of parents often not only out-stretch their own capabilities but those of their children as well. Hitching your wagon to a star is a fine form of idealism, but it must be tempered with realism.

As high school graduation time nears, the main concern of seniors is either getting a job or winning admission to a college or university. Often the latter becomes as pressing and more disappointing than the first.

If some 20 per cent of the graduates cannot be materially benefitted by full college courses, graduation time is the time to determine that fact, so that the student may take special courses that will benefit him or may plunge directly into the work for which he is best fitted in his present capacity.

In a news letter to parents in a large city recently a high school principal observed that "those who have maintained good study habits and conscientiously applied their talents do not have too great a problem."

The big problem, he said, lies at the feet of students who have avoided "the discipline involved in further academic pursuits."

This is a time when parents who have tried to over-build the ambitions of their children into aiming at highly selective universities, when their accomplishments have been mediocre, should face reality and should show the proper understanding. Instead of displaying disappointment or resentment, they should lend every encouragement to their children to make the most of the college opportunities opened to them. At best, the disappointment for some of the youngsters will be sharp and deep but they, too, should realize that not all can reach the highest rung of the ladder.

Graduation from high school is not a guarantee for admission to all colleges. Some youngsters have time yet to acquire the attitudes that lead to better academic work. Others, having tasted the bitter pill, may find a more realistic choice of colleges will still give them the more advanced education they want and need.

First deed of Indian land to English colonists was by Samoset, who transferred 12,000 acres of his tribe's land to John Brown, a settler.

The egg came before the chicken. Birds are an offshoot of reptile stock that was laying eggs millions of years before the first prehistoric bird flew, the National Geographic says.

Between sessions of Congress, crews in the Capitol must scour, dust, mop and polish 540 rooms, 16½ acres of floor space, more than 100 elaborate chandeliers, 160 paintings, 83 statues, 64 marble and bronze busts and other works of art.

Don't Forget The Story Of The Tortoise And The Hare

WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, JR.

Army Reserve Tension High

M'Namara's Elimination Plan Hit

A CONGRESSIONAL committee headed by Mr. Hebert of Louisiana is midway through hearings freighted with tension, on the question of the proposed elimination of the Army Reserve. The tension is for various reasons. For one thing, there is the cadre of officers and men who have devoted a significant part of their lives in the services of an idea — the Army Reserve — who have now heard the doctor recommend euthenasia. It is difficult, after years of service, to be told that economy, or managerial tidiness, or whatever it was that Mr. McNamara's computer disgorged, justifies the elimination of an active service which for years, and in several crises, proved itself an impressive means of buttressing the national security. All the more difficult if you believe for the best of patriotic reasons that Mr. McNamara's computer is on this occasion, as on a few others, disposing of people, ideas, and traditions, on the basis of ill-digested data.

An important additional point of tension. Some of the most responsible members of the Army will tell you privately that the despotic habits of Mr. McNamara have had the effect of paralyzing witnesses whose word might be of great usefulness to the committee in considering McNamara's proposal. The example is fresh before the minds of the highest officials of the armed services of Admiral Anderson, whose term of office as chairman of the Joint Chiefs was terminated in 1963 by President Kennedy in punishment for his singing his own beliefs, which were contrary to Mr. McNamara's, before a congressional committee in 1962.

AND THE THIRD point of tension is Mr. McNamara's style, which caused the chairman of this committee, in a moment of uncontained exasperation last December, to mutter that Mr. McNamara evidently believes not that the Congress of the United States is a necessary evil, but that it is an unnecessary evil. Mr. McNamara provoked this particular outburst by calmly announcing his intention on December 12 to do away with the Reserve, without so much as a by-your-leave in the direction of Congress. The Reserve having been set up by Congress (in 1920), it is the opinion of certain members of Congress, most specifically including Mr. Hebert — who is chairman of the armed service committee and primarily responsible for transmitting enlightened recommendations on military policy to the House of Representatives — that it is ultimately their business, not Mr. McNamara's, whether to dispose of the Reserve. But Mr. McNamara, with his genius for diplomatic ineptitude, let it be known that in the opinion of Army counsel (which is not at all different from saying in the opinion of himself), he has all the authority he needs to implement the proposed resolution. It was ruefully that his spokesman, the Secretary of the Army, had to admit under questioning that unless the Congress appropriates money with which to effect the proposed amalgamation, said proposed amalgamation isn't going to take place, unless Mr. McNamara sells his Ford stock and pays for it himself.

TENSION ENOUGH, then, for a dozen congressional investigations; and everything points, ultimately, to that haunting question: are we really prepared — all the men, women and children in the United States — to simply turn over our defense policy to Robert McNamara, subject to the pleasure of the President — whose faith in him appears to be if not unthinking, at least unlimited? Suppose McNamara is wrong? Not merely about the Reserve, but about the manned bombers, the moon program, the overseas bases. Hell - literally, hell-there would be to pay. How are we to inform ourselves about Mr. McNamara's performance, if he succeeds in intimidating all his subordinates, lifetime students of the discipline of war, among whom we must suppose resides a relevant sum of knowledge about, and experience in, military and strategic matters which Mr. McNamara, for all his agility, has presumably not been able to surpass during his four years in office.

How many of our four star generals really agree with Mr. McNamara that it is wise to abolish the Reserve? Are not his present arguments flimsy? He wants to unify management: and he proposed to do away with the Reserve, which is managed by a single command, and turn management over to the 50 state governors who command the National Guard. He wants to save 150 million bucks — but how many million dollars will it take to retrain for effective service replacements for that 85 per cent of the enlisted Reserve who, a poll reveals, would decline to join the Guard? The justification for the merger is superficially plausible. Perhaps, a profound case can be made for it: but how are we to measure the relative profundity of the case for amalgamation, if we do not have the means of measuring the profundity of the opposition's case? And how can we measure it, when the hot breath of Mr. McNamara licks, and paralyzes officers seated before a congressional committee, who never quailed before the machine gun fire of the enemy they fought in two vital wars?

Mr. Hebert has an important job to preform. Mr. McNamara may be the greatest military genius since Alexander the Great. But then again he may not be: and if he isn't, who, if not Mr. Hebert, is going to start finding out for us? The Russians?

Flat Chests Can Have Advantages

I DON'T PRETEND to be an expert, therefore I accept, in the spirit it was given, one reader's reaction to my advice on what to do about small breasts. This continues to be a serious problem with many women, married or unmarried.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: The desirability of the large breast is a psychological or peculiar twist in the thinking of the more immature American males, as perhaps the heads of Turkish harems.

A small breast, no matter how small, can be attractive, and usually is to a more mature man. I do not mean an old man either; but one who is sophisticated in his tastes.

The best thing about starting out life with a small bosom is that you outlast the husky girls by anywhere from 20 years to a lifetime. I started out with such a figure, and two years after my marriage I was pleased to have developed just the right amount of breast (after my first baby) whereas many of my friends had a problem which is really serious — they sagged, and some badly, by the time they were in their late 20s, after childbearing.

Tell those girls who worry about small breasts that they should develop grace and poise and firm, trim figures. And the brains and charm to attract the kind of man who is not so stupid as to think an overdeveloped bosom is anything special.— Mrs. B. B. (Not Bardot)

And here is additional advice from another reader:

DEAR DR. STEINCROHN: Many girls are in despair because of their flat-chestedness. The truth is, their shortcomings are not as important as they think — though they probably can't be convinced of this. They might not believe it if they were told (which is true) that most famous, successful, and romantically beloved women of all ages have had the same kind of physique they have.

The differences might have been that the other women were interesting women in their own right — they had interesting minds, absorbing careers, charming personalities, and spirited intelligence. Men were interested in them as people, not as shapes.

It is true, unfortunately, that our present culture overemphasizes women's physical attributes and disregards their total personalities; yet, when the chips are down, people are still attracted to the person with a warm, winning personality.

THE GREAT MODERN intellectural, Jacques Barzun, in his book, "God's Country and Mine" (which I recommend highly) says of the modern bust-conscious woman, "She struts about as in the ads, putting forward her two little bundles as on a peddler's tray — pathetic and profoundly modest, since it is evident she thinks this is the best she has to offer."

My advice to your anxious readers is, wear a padded bra to make your clothes hang right, and then forget the whole thing. If someone really loves you, he will love the whole you. — Mrs. S.

Comment: I don't know of any doctor who can give any better advice than you can find in these letters from sympathetic readers who are trying to help.

Dr. Steincrohn's booklet, "Less Tension at Home" will be mailed to you on receipt of a stamped, self - addressed envelope and 25 cents in coin for handling. Address your request to Dr. Steincrohn, in care of this newspaper.

Dr. Steincrohn is sorry he cannot answer readers' letters. Nevertheless, most questions are answered in later colums.

RALPH DE TOLEDANO

Aid-To-Education Preview Is Given

PASSAGE OF the Federal aid-to-education bill as proposed by President Lyndon Johnson has caused a stir of hopeful activity among the bureaucratic forces at the U.S. Office of Education. It is seen there as the first step toward a "unified" education system that will cover the entire country and make each school as alike as two packages of Jell-O.

This was the ultimate aim of the educationists, though they pleaded that Federal aid was necessary because local communities were not spending enough money on new classrooms. When this argument was demolished, they openly espoused the doctrine of central control — and this is what we are going to get unless and until the American people decide that the schools belong to them and not to a group of opinionated theorists sitting in Washington.

Education, to be valid and effective, must derive its nourishment from its own roots. It must reflect the basic moral codes and moral thinking of the community. If ideas and ideals are imported, they shatter old standards and leave those who are exposed to the new educational process adrift. Much of the rootlessness and aimlessness of contemporary youth is traceable to the breakdown of values and the attempted imposition of others which, though proper for one part of the country, are meaningless in other parts.

THIS IS ONE of the sad consequences of bureaucratic meddling in education. A more obvious and more dramatic possibility is indicated by what is happening in Omaha, Nebraska. A reader sends me an editorial from the Omaha World-Herald which tells the story. According to the account, a sixth grader came home with some of her school materials. This included "Senior Weekly Reader" for January 18-22, 1965, published by Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn.

"This is about the Great Society," the girl told her parents.

Read it for yourself:

"The Great Society defined . . .It is a place where no one is poor, where schooling through college is free, where all the sick people are cared for, and where cities and countryside are made beautiful."

On the back page of the "Senior Weekly Reader" there was a quiz, so that the sixth grader's teacher could learn whether or not the lesson had penetrated. One of the true or false statements was:

"The Great Society is a place where people pay for their schooling."

"THE CHILD SAID that she really knew better," the Omaha World-Herald reports, "but she had marked the statement false, for that was the answer that was required if one expected to make a passing grade.

"Her father suggested a true or false statement which the quiz did not include. It is:

"'Political liars don't waste any time getting their brainwashing propaganda into classrooms.'

"If you mark that false, you're false, you're flunking."

By this time, the writer responsible for the editorial must be under attack as a John Bircher, a Minuteman, a Kluxer, or worse — a conservative. I am sure that he is being accused of tampering with the educational process and of wanting to burn books. Whenever criticism is leveled at schools, this is the inevitable result. Those who are succeeding in standing education on its ear take the view that expressing dissent is tantamount to treason.

PARENTS WHO are disturbed by the nature and quality of today's education are therefore silenced. No one likes to be a target for the smearbund which takes to the warpath whenever criticism is voiced. And this fear exists at a time when school boards are presumably controlled by the community.

What happens when the Federal government, in all its majesty, must be confronted? Now and then, there are brave men and women who are willing to take the punishment and to be leaders in their communities. Will they be ready to take on a Federal government which, not too long ago, was ready to use the Internal Revenue Service as an instrument of persuasion?

Yet this is the road down which we are moving toward the Great Society, in which everyone gets something for nothing — as long as he behaves. Once upon a time, there were Constitutional barricades which restrained the assaults of a Federal bureaucracy. But the Constitution is rapidly being relegated to the dust bin, its provisions ignored by the Supreme Court — all in the name of rights "guaranteed" by our basic legal document.

This kind of Newspeak and Doublethink -- war is peace, right is wrong, patriotism is treason, anarchy is law — is all about us. As our children are brainwashed, so will history herald our own 1984.

College Revolts Still Spreading

CAMPUS REVOLTS continue to spread throughout American colleges and universities. But it is difficult to see that they are contributing in anything but a negative way to the quality of higher education.

Almost every section of the country is featuring student strikes, demonstrations and riots. The causes range from demands for the right to advertise obscenity to demands for a voice in the running of educational institutions.

In all the publicity surrounding these activities very little is heard about disciplinary action taken or proposed by school officials against the disturbers of academic peace. In all too many instances the objective seems to be on the side of making sure that everyone's complaint is sufficiently aired.

Many thoughtful Americans believe that the situation calls for the erection of more and better campus woodsheds where the obstreperous, tantrum - inclined students can be dealt with in the old-fashioned way. However, in this enlightened day such methods seem to be frowned upon by school administrators. Too often, it seems, the protests are sponsored or participated in by members of the faculty. And it would be unseemly, at best, to subject a doctor of philosophy, for example, to a woodshed tanning with a rubber hose or a stout birch branch.

CORRECTLY OR NOT, many university officials are inclined to blame the student activities at the University of California at Berkeley for much of the agitation now afflicting other college campuses. There can be little doubt that Berkeley takes the cake for the most ridiculous so-called "freedom of speech" demands yet voiced by any group of adolescent, misled students. This centered about the right to carry a placard bearing a single, four - letter obscene word in campus demonstrations.

But if Berkeley is to blame for sparking disruptive activities on other campuses, it also must be given credit for bringing out at least one voice of sanity in the present situation. The voice belongs to Dr. Wilson H. Elkins, president of the University of Maryland, who used the events at Berkeley to illustrate a number of pertinent "myths" and "facts" about life on the American campus. One of the "facts" he enumerated is the danger of confusing academic freedom and students' rights with anarchy.

SITUATIONS SUCH as those at Berkeley, Elkins told the annual convocation at his school, stem from small groups which flout regulations, oppose any authority and confuse freedom with license to do as they wish. His own administration, he added, takes the following course:

"It encourages academic freedom but does not associate this principle with any right of students to determine academic or non-academic requirements . . . This university believes that respect for authority and law is essential to the development of good citizenship and that the insidious erosion and sometimes outright defiance of authority is a dangerous trend in our society.

"It seems clear that if any student or group of students is allowed to seize power in the name of freedom of speech, then the university should close their doors before rigor mortis sets in."

Dr. Elkins' remarks undoubtedly received the silent cheers of thousands of concerned Americans who read about them but did not hear them. The interesting point is that the Maryland president also received a standing ovation from several thousand students who heard them as part of the audience.

What should one do when insulted or given unwarranted medical advice by a nurse? Also, is a nurse supposed to discuss cases with outsiders?

You should report all three of these to the doctor concerned. A local physician assured us that these things are not to be done by nurses and that any such cases, particularly the discussion of a doctor's patients with outsiders, should be reported to the attending physician.

What can be done about a Ouachita Parish school bus driver who refuses to slow down or blow the horn if the school children are not standing by the side of the road?

Transportation Supervisor Morris C. Griggs explains that drivers can not be forced to blow bus horns, since in some cases the noise could wake night workers or disturb other people. The horn can be blown to alert children of the bus' approach "as a matter of courtesy, if there are no close neighbors, though it is not required."

As to the matter of slowing down, Griggs says that drivers are required to come to a complete halt "at each and every assigned stop" whether children are waiting or not. If no children are waiting to board, a bus driver is not permitted to delay, however, and will proceed immediately to the next stop. If drivers are failing to halt at assigned stops, Griggs should be notified.

If you use hepachlor (ant poison) for cut worms and potato (Irish) bugs, is it safe to eat the potatoes and other vegetables that grow where this poison has been applied.

No. Ouachita Parish County Agent J. J. Joyce Jr. said, "We recommend, that it not be used for anything edible, or for pasture or where anything edible will be put out. It is not safe on anything growing to be consumed by humans, livestock or any wildlife. When this poison gets into the ground it forms into another type of poison that is even more severe than the other."

The agent gave these recommendations for control of the Colorado potato beatle which affects Irish potatoes:

"You can use Thiodan, at the rate of one-half pound to one pound of active ingredients per acre. DDT at the rate of two-thirds to one pound of active ingredients per acre may also be used. Another poision recommended is Sevin, at the rate of one to two pounds of wettable powder per acre. I wouldn't recommend feeding the foliage of any plants treated with these poisons to livestock. That is a precaution on all poisons unless specified. Read the label on poison container and follow recommendations in all cases."

Can the City of Monroe make a property owner cut hedges when they obstruct the view of a motorist at an intersection?

City Ordinances state that no plants can be located on the neutral ground between the street line and the property line at any intersection closer than 15 feet from the nearest curbing of the street intersection. If the property owner fails to remove such obstructions upon request, the city has the authority to do so.

• • •

When will the City of Monroe pave Oak Street and what will the cost be?

Street commissioner W. D. H. Rodriguez said that a certain portion of Oak Street will be improved this year, but that the section in question here is probably not included in these plans. The remainder of Oak Street will be included in the 1966 street improvement program, but costs will not be determined until the city receives bids from the contractor on the individual project.

If a motorist attempts a left turn, is not the traffic behind required to slow down for him. Should the auto behind the motorists attempt to pass after the first motorist has given the proper signals. If the second motorist does pass and a wreck occurs, who is a fault?

Section 24-19 of the Monroe City Code provides that "no operator of a vehicle shall follow another vehicle in the same lane at a distance nearer, or a speed greater, than such following vehicle, in event of emergency, may be brought to a complete stop behind such proceeding vehicle without collision or accident."

The ordinance makes no provision for vehicles traveling behind others making turns, et cetera.

Should the left turn be made off a two-lane street (one lane each way) the following vehicles would be forced to slow down or stop. Should the left turn be made off a four-lane street (two lanes each way), the following vehicles could move to the right hand lane, if it is clear and proceed.

Should the following vehicle attempt to pass and a wreck occurs, all of the circumstances would have to be known to determine who is at fault. This would be for the courts to decide.

Recently I clocked a city bus exceeding the speed limit by 20 miles per hour. I know they have a schedule to meet, but this is just as dangerous as an individual exceeding the speed limit by 20 miles an hour. Why are the busese allowed to do this?

City buses are not given any more privileges than other vehicles regarding the speed limits in the City of Monroe. All of the drivers have been instructed to observe the speed limits, and city police are under no instructions to allow any leeway for bus drivers exceeding the limits.

The speed limits apply to all vehicles, private and public, except in extreme emergencies.

If a repossessed house is bought from the Federal Housing Administratian where a fence extends onto the FHA property and has been used as a property line although not surveyed after 25 years, can the fence be moved over? It extends from one to two feet over the line.

Federal Housing Administration officials answer that the fact that this is FHA property would have no bearing in this particular case, and the property would be subject to state law just as though it were owned by an individual. The question of property line location is quite technical in certain instances. You should consult an attorney and give him full information on the case before taking any action.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

HAIR RESTORATION

A breakthru in the treatment of the common form of baldness was discussed in yesterday's article. Partial restoration of hair occured to 16 of 21 men after an ointment containing the male sex hormone was rubbed daily into the scalp for 5 months. We hope this research proves to be practical because bald individuals have been exploited long enough. It should boost their morale just to know that the condition may be reversible.

There is a relationship between male sex hormones (testosterone) and the growth of scalp and body hair. Hereditary baldness does not appear before adolescence and the number of baldies increase for each decade thereafter. It never develops in those who do not reach sexual maturity. The adult eunuch is beardless and seldom bald. When given testosterone, his beard grows and he will lose his scalp hair if predisposed to baldness. This is a switch.

Maintenance of the beard and hair elsewhere on the body is dependent upon testosterone; this is not true of the scalp. There is no restoration of hair in the baldy as he grows older, even tho sexual function wanes and the secondary sex hair becomes sparse. These are definite signs of a testosterone deficiency and demonstrates that the male hormone figures only in the loss and not in the maintenance of scalp hair.

The success of the testosterone remedy depends upon the viability of the hair-bearing follicles (roots) on the scalp. Dermatologists have removed slivers of skin from the scalp of balding men and studied the tissue under the miscroscope. They found that roots deteriorate gradually, and in time are capable of producing only fragile, inconsequential, downy filaments.

Other follicles become rudimentary and the hair-producing part disappears. The pore remains because the oil glands are a part of the unit and need the opening to allow secretions to escape. It is obvious that these rudimentary hair roots cannot respond to testosterone.

Services Start Observance Of Passover Here

The observance of the Jewish Passover started Friday at sundown with a service at Temple B'Nai Israel and a congregational Seder, according to Rabbi Sylvin Wolf.

At 10:30 a.m. Sunday there will be a service with another one set for 11 a.m. Friday, April 23.

The concluding event in the observance here will be at 8 p.m. Friday, April 23 service, which will be followed by the presentation of selections from Mendelssohn's "Elijah," by members of Northeast State Concert Choir and members of the Temple Choir under the direction of Davis Bingham, professor of music at Northeast State.

The Passover is observed for seven days by Reformed Jews, and eight days by Orthodox Jews. During this time they will eat unleavened bread, and will not use leavened products.

The Seder, which is held in observance of the Passover festival, is the festival supper, during which time the story of the Exodus from Egypt is told, said Rabbi Wolf.

District Attorney Lassiter Plans Third Term Bid

District Attorney Albin P. Lassiter has indicated he will seek re-election for a third term when his present term expires next year.

Lassiter in a speech to the Altrusa Club of Monroe and West Monroe Thursday night, said he would continue the present policy of the office for both Ouachita and Morehouse parishes.

He was elected to his first term as district attorney in 1954, and re-elected in 1960 without opposition.

He has served as vice president of the National District Attorney's Association, past president of the Louisiana Baptist Brotherhood, and is a member of the Fourth Judicial District, Louisiana State and American Bar Associations. He has lectured at a special course for district attorneys at Northwestern University in Chicago, Ill., for a number of years.

Houston Blasts Indians In Second Game, 11-6

CHARLIE DRESSEN, Detroit Tigers' manager who has been sidelined since he suffered a heart attack in Florida March 8, chats with his temporary successor, Bob Swift, Friday as the team works out in Los Angeles. The Tigers open a three game series with the Los Angeles Angels tonight. Dressen, who has been under treatment in Los Angeles, still doesn't know when the doctors will let his rejoin his club. Cougars Win Despite Two Tribe Homers

BY KEITH PRINCE
World Sports Editor

HOUSTON — Despite towering home runs by left fielder Alton Thomas and catcher Eddie Kincaid, the Indians of Northeast State proved inept at every other phase of the game here Friday afternoon in losing their second straight to the University of Houston—this one 11-6 in a wild affair that lasted three hours.

The Indians, now 9-6, wind up the series with UH today in a 2 p.m. tilt.

Actually, about the only bright spot in the day for Northeast was the trip to the fabulous Astrodome stadium, home of the Houston Astros, and even it was a slight disappointment because of the hurried schedule which the club was under. Although amazed by every feature of the dome they had time to see in the quick tour, every player left wanting to see more.

After Thomas whacked the third pitch of the game over the right field fence to put Northeast in front 1-0, things grew from fine to fair to bad as the Cougars, supposedly a not-so-successful major college baseball team, knocked Tribe pitchers for 12 hits and excepted graciously a total of five errors from the Northeast defense.

The Cougars tied the game, 1-1, in the third inning on back to back Northeast infield errors and two innings later begin a four-frame spree that netted two, two, four and two runs in each of the innings.

By the time the dust settled, Houston, with plenty of aid from the Indians, had turned the game into a near rout.

Northeast did manage a single run in the sixth inning when Houston chipped in a two-base error to go with Red Hall's run producing single.

And in the eighth inning, when it finally appeared that the Gulf States Conference leader had about gotten fed up with their own play, Northeast came to life with four runs and gained some semblance of the club which is thought of highly in Louisiana collegiate circles.

In the eighth, Billy McCullar, possibly the finest outfielder and best all-around player Northeast has ever had, led off with a walk. Charley Dykes and Hall followed with singles to set the stage for Kincaid's homer.

The diminutive catcher, who looks like a miniature major-leaguer and often plays like a life-sized one, tied into a Tom Wenmoth fastball and sent it sailing for close to 380-feet and planted three runs. The homer, probably Kincaid's longest ever, left Northeast behind 9-6.

However, it was to no avail as Houston came back with two more runs in the bottom of the inning and it was all over except for the last three Tribe outs — which were easy ones for the Cougars.

Although it was a rather rusty performance overall, there were a few bright performances by the Tribe. One came from McCullar, th transfer from Centenary. The junior pharmacy major reached base safely four of five times he batted, scored two runs, had one hit — a double — and hit the ball well three other times. He also made two outstanding catches and once forced a runner at third base when he scooped up a base hit and fired a strike to Dykes, who was standing on third.

A couple of other standouts for NLSC were pitchers Bob Rachal and southpaw Mike Tinnerello, who made his second successful relief appearance in two days.

Rachal pitched five innings before leaving in the sixth with trouble brewing. He was responsible for four runs, but only two were earned, and he looked sharp before retiring.

Tinnerello came in in the eighth with two men aboard and no outs and allowed only one hit in his stint.

Rookie David Davis relieved Rachal but was ineffective. Houston scored seven runs off the freshman, who only last week threw a sparkling two-hitter against Southwestern in a crucial league game. And six of the Cougars' runs were earned off Davis and they collected seven hits off him.

BILLY MARTINDALE gets an assist from his wife, Dianna, Friday as she cleans off the hot blade that blazed him into a tie for the lead in the $55,000 Houston Golf Classic at Houston. Martindale fired a 66 today to go with a 69 to give him a half way mark score of 135 and a tie with the first round leader Bert Yancey. (AP Wirephoto)

Martindale Fires 66 In Golf Play

HOUSTON (AP) — Billy Martindale, a former national skeet shoot champion, put together six birdies and one bogey Friday for a 66 that permitted him to catch Bert Yancey, the first round leader, and share the lead of the $55,000 Houston Golf Classic at the halfway mark at seven-under-par 135.

The 26-year-old Martindale blazed away with a hot putter to put the 66 beside a 69 as Yancey rallied to retain his tie with birdies on two of the last five holes for a 65-70—135.

Yancey, 27, a Florida native playing out of Philadelphia, was in the fourth from the last threesome and did not pull into the tie until he sank a two-foot birdie putt on the final green.

"It was a very rewarding shot," Yancey said. "It makes you feel better to birdie the last hole."

Until Yancey's tie-clincher, it appeared that he would share the runnerup spot behind Martindale with Bobby Nichols, the 1964 PGA champion who graduated from Texas A&M in 1958, three years ahead of Martindale.

Nichols missed a share of the lead when he three-putted the final green from 35 feet for a 67-69—136 on the 7,233-yard, par 35-36—71 Sharpstown Country Club course.

Tied at 137 were Bruce Devlin, the Australian who set a Sharpstown competitive course record with a 63 pro-am score Wednesday, and Don January, a Dallas, Tex., pro. Devlin had a 68-69, January a 71-66.

A two-over-par 144 score was needed as the field of 138 pros and four amateurs was cut to 71 pros for the final 36 holes.

Victims of the cutoff included Jack Burke Jr., the 1952 and 1959 Classic champion, Henry Ransom and Jimmy Demaret. Ransom, who coached Nichols and Martindale at A&M, was eliminated with a 74-71—145.

Martindale was quite pleased with his putting.

"Overall, my putting was exceptional," he said.

A skeet champion at the age of 12, Martindale later became a schoolboy football quarterback at Jacksonville, Tex., but turned to golf as a career after being offered a scholarship at Texas A&M.

He joined the pro tour on a regular basis in late 1963. He still is seeking his first title but has won $9,414.12 in total money this year, including a third place tie at Pensacola.

Martindale hit all 18 greens and used 31 putts. He lost to par only by three-putting from 40 feet on the 207-yard, par 3 thirteenth hole. He got his birdies with putts of 15, 2, 10, 8, 20 and six feet.

"While putting with the big thing, my irons were working well,' he said. "I'm only an average driver but I'm real long on irons."

Martindale and Nichols expressed hope they will be in the same threesome Saturday.

"All the former Aggies in the area would be with us," Nichols said.

Nichols had a tremendous "Aggie gallery" with him all the way in 1962 when he won the Classic and $9,000 with a 278, six under par.

After sinking a birdie putt from 15 feet on the third green, Nichols three-putted the par 3 fifth and made the turn at par 35. Putts of 15, 20 and 2 feet left him seven under par going onto the final green where his first putt from 35 feet went two feet past the cup. He missed again coming back.

Casey Stengel

Mets Manager Most Amazing

NEW YORK (AP) — They call them the Amazin' Mets. But everybody knows the only thing really amazin' about them is their manager.

Warren Spahn hasn't been around the club very long but there's no doubt in his mind who is the most amazin' Met of them all.

"I knew Casey Stengel years ago," said the pitcher-coach. "More than 20, in fact. I was just a green kid then trying to make good. Casey was my first big league manager, you know. But I was too young to understand him then.

"Now, that I've become reassociated with him, I can understand why he's become an image. Why he's so beloved. Why he's the greatest ambassador the game has ever known.

"That man is a marvel. He's unbelievable. I don't care how old he is. He's got all those young fellows beat a mile.

"I've never seen a more understanding person. Or a more dedicated baseball man.

"Sure, he's a comedian. Sure he double talks. But he's plenty deep. And nobody knows more about this game. If you listen to him carefully, and concentrate on what he's telling you, you can learn plenty. A fellow can get an education just being around him."

This comes from one who has won 356 games in 19 years and experienced 13 seasons winning 20 or more. Stengel is not the only one who is amazin'.

At 44, Spahn is the oldest major leaguer practicing his trade. He's also taken on the additional chores of pitching coach.

"Casey's been good to me, in that respect, too," said the indestructible left-hander. "He lets me run the pitchers and he's never second guessed me. He doesn't tell you 'you have to do this,' or 'do it that way. He leaves you on your own initiative. If you can't do it, then he takes over.

"Some of his know-how has rubbed off on our kids. We have 18 and 19-year olds on our club who know more about the inside baseball than guys five or six years older on other clubs.

Southern Wins All Five Relays In Tigers Meet

GRAMBLING, La. (AP) — Southern University swept all five relay events in the 7th Grambling Relays Friday but attacks on world and American records failed to materialize.

The most astonishing development was the failure of host Grambling College to win an event in its own meet.

Grambling has most of its 1964 squad which was ranked among the nation's top 10 university-college track teams.

Grambling pulled fleet Dick Stebbins, the Olympian from Los Angeles, out of the 100-yard dash to use him in the relay events against Southern, but the strategy didn't work. Stebbins, running in Southern's Pelican Relays last weekend, turned in a 9.2 century, just 1-10th of a second off the world standard held by Bob Hayes.

Southern turned in a disappointing winning time in the 440 relay. At its own meet, it equalled the American standard with a 40 second flat time, but was a full second slower here.

The only meet record came in the mile relay, which Southern won in 3:10.3.

Pat O'Brien Medalist In LSU Golf Tourney

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Louisiana State maintained its stranglehold on its own golf tournament Friday by coming from behind to win its fourth championship in five years in the LSU Invitational.

Coach Harry Taylor's golfers found the going rugged on a wind-swept LSU course but so did the other entries from 16 other colleges and universities. And the Tigers prevailed with a winning total of 591—well off last year's winning 584 score.

Alabama, the first day leader, was runner-up, at 594 and Memphis State third at 596.

Pat O'Brien, the only varsity entry of McNeese State, won medalist honors with a two-under-par 140 for the 36-hole tournament.

LSU monopolized all other honors as the freshman team—sparked by Jimmy Day's winning medal score of 144—took the team title over a 10-man field. The two-man frosh team total was 294, five strokes ahead of runner-up Arkansas.

Rick Nevils sparked the varsity Tigers comeback victory. He played a steady game and finished with a 72-72—144 to lead, LSU.

Three sophomores—B. R. McLendon with a 146, Randy Wolff with a 149 and Mark Silvers with a 152—formed the LSU team along with Nevils.

Pin placements for Friday's action made the course play longer than its usual 6,078 yards. Scores were higher than in Thursday's play.

Alabama stayed in the running until the final nine holes. The issue was in doubt until the last threesome came in, and Nevils posted his second consecutive 72.

The Crimson Tide was led by Rock Weinard's 145. Joe Sullivan contributed a 148 while John Lamey and Phil Scherer each had a 149.

Russell Glover led Memphis State with a 147.

Other team scores were North Carolina 597, Arkansas 608, Mississippi State 608, Southwestern Louisiana 609, Southern Mississippi 613, Murray State 614, Mississippi 621, Louisiana Tech 626, Tulane 642, Northeast Louisiana 643, Missouri 653, and Nicholls State 666.

Olympic Candidates

Soviet Basketball Squad Is Youngest

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet national basketball team which leaves Saturday for its third tour of the United States has been revised to include some players who are candidates for the 1968 Olympic team.

Coach Alexander Gomelsky retained only six of the players who won the silver medal at the Tokyo games. They will form the nucleus of the traveling team. Joining them are five young players, 20 to 22 years old, and Albert Valtin, a 27-year-old, 6-foot-8 forward who has rejoined the national team.

"This undoubtedly is the youngest team ever to represent the Soviet Union," Gomelsky said. "These changes in the line-up show our determination to begin preparations for the 1968 Olympic Games in Mexico City."

The veterans are Armenak Alachachan, 34-year-old backcourt man; Alexander Travin, Vyacheslav Khrynin; Gennadi Volnov, Yak Lipso and Alexander Petrov, a 6-11 center.

The young players added were guards Modestas Paulauaskas, 6-4, and Zurab Sakandelidze, 6-2; forward Amiran Skhiereli, 6-7½, and centers Leonid Ivanov, 6-8¾, and Nikolai Sushak, 6-9. Skhiereli and Sushak are 22 and the other three are 20.

Gomelski said that of the Tokyo Olympians, only Petrov and Volnov can hope to make the team for Mexico and then only if they remain in good shape.

The U.S. tour will be a sort of preparation for the European championships, which will be played in the Soviet Union May 30-June 10.

"We know that we will play against very strong teams in the United States," Gomelsky said. "This will allow the coaches to check the strength of character of the young players in conditions of sharp competition. I think that not all will pass this test."

The Soviet team is scheduled to play its first game at Las Vegas, Nev., April 19. Other games are listed in Seattle, Los Angeles and Indianapolis. The status of scheduled games against U.S. professional clubs in St. Louis and Boston is undecided.

Caldwell Parish Unit Requesting Split In Season

COLUMBIA (Special) — The Caldwell Parish Wildlife Unit has gone on record requesting the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries for an 18-day split deer season in Caldwell Parish this fall.

Lelan Kenny, president of the group, stated that the Wildlife Unit has asked that the season be split into two nine-day sections.

The club is opposing the opening of season on doe deer anywhere in the parish.

In connection with this action, the Caldwell Parish Police Jury has requested the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries to close the doe season on the Caldwell Game Management Reserve located in this parish.

AIMING FOR THREE

MONROE, La. — Margo Alvarez of Northeast Louisiana State aims or his third consecutive Gulf States Conference tennis singles championships this season.

Alverez won the title as a freshman in 1963 and repeated last spring, leading Northeast team titles on both occasions.

Foyt Enters Indianapolis 500 Event

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The entry application of 1964 winner A. J. Foyt of Houston was among seven received by the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Friday for the 49th 500-mile race May 31.

All were accepted because they were postmarked ahead of the Thursday midnight deadline and increased the field to 64. It will be cut to 33 in time trials next month.

William B. Ansted and Shirley of Indianapolis previously entered two new rear-engine cars for Foyt, a two-time 500 winner, but decided at the last minute to add the conventional front-engine Offenhauser in which he took both the Memorial Day race and the U.S. Auto Club championship last year.

Two other conventional roadster entries were from Frank Curtis, of Hewlett, N.Y., with Leonard Stephens of North Reading, Mass., as driver, and one from Studebaker's Chemical Compounds Division at South Bend, Ind., without a driver.

Four rear-engine cars were overnight entries. J. Frank Harrison of Costa Mesa, Calif., entered two with Chevrolet engines. He named one driver, rookie Ray Furnal of San Diego, Calif.

George Snider, another rookie from Fresno, Calif., was nominated to drive a rear-engine Offenhouser entered by Fred Gerhardt of Fresno, Calif.

Pete Salemi of Cleveland entered a rear-engine Offenhauser without a driver.

Orlando Cepeda Will Soon Be As Good As Before

NEW YORK (AP) — Orlando Cepeda, San Francisco first baseman who underwent surgery last December for a torn ligament in his right knee, was told Friday he soon would be as good as new.

Cepeda, who accompanied the team to New York for its three-game weekend series with the Mets, underwent a check-up. He was told the knee was mending satisfactorily and that he should be ready to give it a full test in about a week.

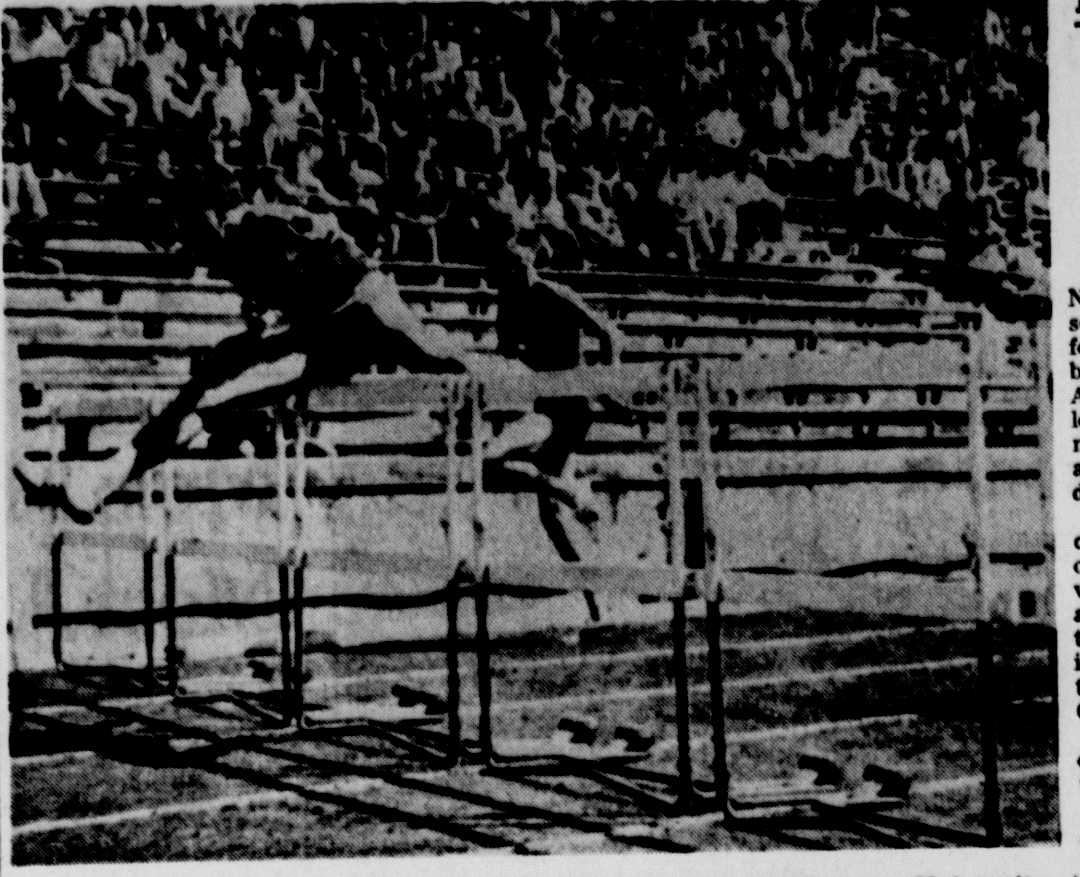
Aside from taking part in infield practice, on a limited basis, the 27-year old slugger has seen no action this season. He appeared in only five games during the spring training season, three times as a pinch hitter. His longest string in any game was one inning.

Willie McCovey has been filling in for Cepeda at first base, with Matty Alou taking over McCovey's spot in left field.

Cepeda was one of the Giants' big guns last year when he batted .304, hit 31 home runs and drove in 97 runs in 142 games.

Added To Team

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Keith Erickson of the national collegiate champion UCLA Bruins and Alan Young of Southern California have been added to the United States national basketball team which meets the Russians next week.



BOBBY MAY, Rice University, clears the last hurdle on his way to winning the second heat in the preliminaries of the 120-yard high hurdles at the Kansas University Relays in Lawrence Friday. Placing second in the event is Cyler Thompson, Houston University, center. Calvin Groff, Missouri, placed third. May and Thompson qualified for the finals in the event to be held today. May's winning time was 13.8. (AP Wirephoto)

Home Opener

Baseball Season Winds Up First Week On Full Slate

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The 1965 major league baseball season winds up its first week with a full schedule today including a home opener in Boston.

Bill Monbouquette, who pitched the first game for the Red Sox, a 7-2 victory at Washington Monday, has been given the honor of working in the season inaugural at Fenway Park against the Baltimore Orioles.

In other American League games, Washington plays at Chicago, Cleveland at Minnesota, New York at Kansas City and Detroit at Los Angeles.

In the National League, San Francisco opens a three-game series at New York, Houston is at Pittsburgh, Chicago at Milwaukee, Cincinnati at St. Louis and Los Angeles at Philadelphia.

There were no games scheduled in either league Friday.

The opener at Boston will have added significance. Robin Roberts, the veteran Oriole right-hander, will be seeking his 272nd lifetime victory. The 38-year-old former Whiz Kid is the only active major leaguer within striking distance of 300 victories.

Only nine pitchers have registered 300 or more victories in the big leagues. Early Wynn was the last to achieve that distinction. He finished in 1963 with an even 300.

Warren Spahn, with 356 triumphs, is the only man in that select group still active.

Half of the 20 probable pitching selections for today will be making their second starts of the season. Don Drysdale of the Dodgers, Bobe Veale of the Pirates, Chris Short of the Phillies, Tony Cloninger of the Braves and Monbouquette won their initial starts. The losers were Juan Marichal of the Giants, Jim O'Toole of the Reds, Phil Ortega of the Senators, Fred Newman of the Angels and Bob Bruce of the Astros.

In addition to the Red Sox, five clubs still have to stage their home openers. The Dodgers and Giants do it next Tuesday, while the Yankees, Tigers and Indians will get under way on home soil the following day.

Safari Endurance

European Drivers Drop Out Of Race

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Two top European rally drivers, Eric Carlsson of Sweden and Eugen Boehringer of Germany, dropped out of the East African Safari Friday on the first leg of the gruelling 3,000-mile test of automobile endurance.

Carlsson and his co-driver Stirling Moss, former British racing star, lost their way in the pre-dawn darkness and reportedly engaged in a heated quarrel before turning back.

Boehringer's Mercedes 300 SE slid off the road into a mud clogged ditch as he swerved to avoid another car while rounding a turn.

They were among 19 of the 86 cars which dropped out on the first leg, which winds over quagmire roads from Nairobi to the Uganda capital of Kampala. As the survivors headed back, Carlsson's British wife, Pat Most Carlsson, held a slim lead in her Saab 96 sports car over four Ford Cortinas, which held the next four places.

Peter Hughes, a Kenya driver who won last year's rally, was driving the second-place car. The French Citroen and Peugeot teams trailed the Cortinas in the team competition.

Mrs. Carlsson's lead at Kampala was only two points. Her co-driver, Elizabeth Nystromnof Sweden, was reported to be suffering from food poisoning and to be running a high temperature. She may be forced to retire from the rally.

Carlsson and Moss took a wrong turn near the Kenya town of Kakemega and went 40 miles off the route before discovering the error. Moss was reported navigating at the time. One driver returning here said, "They're at dagger points, absolutely steaming at one another."

Throws 1st Ball

DENVER (AP) — Usually it's a male-president, governor, mayor or whatever — who tosses out the first ball at the opening game of the baseball season.

The Denver Bears are trying something different for their Pacific Coast League opener this afternoon with the Arkansas Travelers. Mrs. John A. Love, wife of the governor and an ardent fan, will make the first toss.

In Kansas Relays

New Mexico's Robinson Sets Meet Mark In Broad Jump

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — New Mexico's Clarence Robinson leaped 26 feet, 2 ½ inches for a meet broad jump record but Kansas' four-mile team and Abilene Christian's sprint medley team failed to break meet marks in winning their events at the 40th Kansas Relays Friday.

Robinson, a junior from Chicago, smashed the meet record of 25-6 on his final jump. The wind at his back was measured at 3.1 miles per hour, well under the allowable for records. Robinson's career best was 25-10 two weeks ago against Southern California.

Finals were held in seven events Friday, with 19 finals today.

Other individual winners were Jim Miller of Colorado, the 1963 champ, with a 51.9 in the 400-meter hurdles; George Scott of Oklahoma City U., 14:58, in the 5,000-meter run, and Jon Cole of Arizona State, 175-6, in the discus.

Randy Matson of Texas A&M, world record holder in the shot put, passed up Friday's discus throw and will compete today.

Kansas was an easy winner in the four-mile relay in near-record time.

The four Kansas milers ran 16:45.8, winning by more than 100 yards over Oklahoma State, Tom Yergovich led off with 4:11.4. Kowell Paul ran a 4:14.6, John Lawson clinched it with a fast 4:08.7 and Harald Hadley anchored in 4:11.1.

The Jayhawks missed the meet record of 16:41.6 set by Missouri last year.

Abilene Christian, with Lynn Saunders running the 440 leg in 48.3 and Charles Christmas the anchor half-mile in a sizzling 1:49.1, won the sprint medley in 3:20.3 but missed the meet record of 3:19.5.

The expected battle with Southern Illinois didn't come off because Southern Illinois was disqualified for an illegal baton pass between the first two men. It had a record 3:19.4 at the Texas Relays with Abilene Christian second.

Indians 'Came Over To Compete'

By BOB CARROLL
World Sports Writer

"They came over to compete" was the way Coach Bob Groseclose summed up his Northeast Indians' stunning performances at the Northwestern Relays Wednesday night, where they broke four records and tied another in walking away with the meet title.

"I'm really proud of the whole team. They gave an all-out effort," the somewhat elated mentor commented.

"Mental attitude" was to what Coach Groseclose attributed the Indians 113 - point showing. Northeast bounced back to leave Southwestern in its wake of record-breaking performances, after USL had handed the Indians their first defeat by a Gulf States Conference school since 1963 at Lafayette last week.

He added that naturally the boys felt "low" after their defeat, but they realized that USL had a "fine team" and that they had their work "cut out" for them.

"The whole team was up for this meet. They got themselves mentally ready." The Indians went through only a short workout Monday afternoon following their Saturday meet in preparation for Wednesday's outing. "They looked like two different teams in the two meets," the veteran mentor stated.

Some track followers were taking bets on USL beating the Indians for a second time, but not Coach Groseclose and his Tribe.

The Indians got off to a good start when Roger Morgan, NAIA champ, and Roger Mann both ran 13.7's in the high hurdles, one of the fastest times in the nation this spring. Morgan was credited with the victory when he lunged into the finish tape. This equals his career best set last season.

Wednesday was Morgan's first appearance over the high hurdles outdoors this season after he suffered a leg injury running an indoor event in February. Groseclose described his comeback as "phenomenal."

Mann, a dazzling Fair Park sophomore, ran a 13.9 at Lafayette last week, but had to settle for second behind NCAA champ Bobby May's 13.8 after Mann stumbled going over the last hurdle. Mann had led most of the way.

May also owns a 13.7 hurdles mark this spring, but it is with wind assistance.

A 13.7 hurdler is something great for a school to have, but when a team has two, that is almost unheard of in track. And Coach Groseclose has hopes that the two will get better before the year's end.

Ronnie Fountain, who went into the NSC Relays undefeated in the 100-yard dash, had to bow out to teammate Dalton LeBlanc, although both ran 9.5's in the finals, wind assisted. However, LeBlanc had recorded a 9.5 in the preliminaries with only a mild breeze and was given credit for that mark which tied a meet record. Fountain got credit for a 9.7 in the prelims.

Fred Vogel set a record which no one else in the nation holds, a 35.9 time in the "320-yard" low hurdles. The event was supposed to have been a 330-yard hurdle race, but the meet officials measured the course too short.

However, the time is excellent, as the 330-yard national record is 36.2, held by Jim Miller of Colorado State. But no one can say just how good Vogel's time would have been if he had run the required distance. Vogel also got a fifth in the highs.

One of the biggest deciding factors of the meet was in the relays, where Northeast came up with four victories in six starts, finishing second behind Southwestern in the spring medley and third behind the Cajuns in the distance medley.

Three of the Tribe's relay efforts were new meet records, and two were new school marks.

Dalton LeBlanc, Morgan, Vogel and Fountain combined their talents to race to a 1:25.1 in the 880-yard relay, finishing 20 yards ahead of the field. This was a meet record, as well as a school standard for the Indians.

The same combination dashed to a 40.9 clocking in the 440-yard relay team with Vogel giving the Indians a five-yard lead on the second leg, and Fountain, anchorman, bringing the baton across the finish line 15-yards in front of Southwestern.

This time is one of the best recorded in the nation this year.

Willis Delhomme, who is still recovering from a leg injury, and Cline Averett, who is suffering from the same ailment, combined with Dalton LeBlanc and Fountain to lead the Tribe to a 3:14.0 in the mile relay, several yards ahead of second-place Tulane. This is the Tribe's best effort of the spring.

"Delhomme, Averett and Morgan helped us very much in the relays," Groseclose stated. "We did not have Morgan and Averett at USL, and that made us have to do some substituting that we could not afford, stretching our depth thin for other events."

Northeast's two-mile relay team clocked a 7:45.6, also coming across the finish line with the pack 25 yards to the rear. Robert Harvison, Gayland LeBlanc, James Bodin and Robert Keasler ran the legs in this race to set a meet and school standard.

Another pleasant surprise for the Northeast mentor was the Tribe's performance in the field events. The Indians finished with 27 points in the field division, including one first when Jack McDougal got revenge over Stephen F. Austin's Steve Hicks in the high jump. McDougal won the event with a leap of 6-4.

"We were real proud of McDougal and Williams (Dick) for their fine performances," Groseclose commented.

Williams placed second in the shot put with a heave of 47-1½, one of the best throws for an Indian in several years. Gary Walker claimed fifth in the shot with a mark of 44-10½.

Other field event points came in the pole vault where Paul Hobgood battled Southwestern's Terry Seguar all the way up to 14-0 before bowing out to Seguar's 14-6. John Linta finished fourth with a 13-6.

Mann, while finishing second in the high hurdles and second in the low hurdles, still had enough energy left to take a second place in the broad jump with a leap of 22-6. Walker grabbed second in the discus with a heave of 160-0, just five and one-half inches behind Tim Hall, La. Tech, who claimed the event and a new mark.

Tommy Slack got a third in the javeline with a throw of 196-
the javelin with a throw of 196-
288-5 set by Northwestern's Glenn Ermatinger. Ermatinger had a heave of 253-3, but the spear failed to break the ground, thus not counting.

Bill White and Tom Brown finished fourth and fifth, respectively, in the two-mile run, behind the torrid pace set by Southwestern's Malcolm Robinson who won the race in 9:04.4, breaking his own record. He outlasted Northwestern's Eddie Watt, who came in second, to win the grueling event.

As expected the strong Southwestern crew will be the chief competitor of the Indians in their bid for a fourth straight GSC crown this season under Coach Groseclose. The Tribe placed second in the conference in 1961, Groseclose's first year at Northeast.

So far this season the Indians are 4-3, winning two indoor meets, and copping the Shreveport Relays and the Northwestern Relays.

The losses came at the All-College Meet to East Texas State, the Civitan Relays behind Kentucky State, and the Southwestern Relays, trailing Rice and Southwestern. In all three losses the Tribe was suffering with injuries to key personnel.

Local Sports Must Improve

By Keith Prince

ALTHOUGH HIGH SCHOOL BASKETBALL has wound itself down for another year and the tennis shoes and nets have been replaced by baseball caps and sun burns, an event of notice took place recently in the Twin Cities which should be called more clearly to the minds of local prep fans.

We refer to the recent hiring of an assistant coach by Ouachita High who is first a basketball coach, and second a football coach. We speak of Billy Daniels, a young man who tutored St. Matthews and St. Frederick basketball teams for the last three years before accepting the Ouachita post.

The importance of this is not by saying that Ouachita is de-emphasising football, because it certainly is not, but the merit here is that the school has enough concern for its overall athletic subject: "A comparison of athletics in Monroe - West Monroe as compared to those in Shreveport." But, still there is little doubt but what the thought has occurred to you at one time or another. It has, in fact, had to occur to you at one time or another because nearly 75 per cent of our schools' opposition comes from Shreveport schools. Therefore, it is only feasible that we must want the schools of our community to be on a par with the schools in the big city 100 miles west of here.

BUT, THE POINT IS, our schools are not playing on a par with Shreveport schools in most all sports, one of which is basketball. And this is the bone we want to pick with you today.

Granted, Neville won second place in District 1-AAA basketball this season and helped keep things from looking entirely bleak for the eastern division schools. But Ouachita, West Monroe and Bastrop did little to keep the race interesting.

We feel that the hiring of an assistant basketball coach at Ouachita is the most important thing that could have been done at the present time to start that school on the way toward becoming a championship contender. And, if things should pan out that way sometime in the next few years, it should present a good example for others to use.

Many Steps To Take

Now for the reasoning along this line.

Naturally, there are many steps which must be taken before schools of our area will be able to contend with the Shreveport schools simply because they have so many more boys from which to choose their athletes.

AND, OF COURSE, more and better coaching is one of the first steps which must be taken in order for us to compete with them. It appears that, basketball-wise, Ouachita is the first to have recognized this need — or at least the first to have done anything about it.

Just what will Daniels' presence do for the Ouachita basketball program? Ouachita's head basketball coach Fontenot, a highly respected and sound basketball man, says, "there is no doubt that Billy's coaching experience will help us tremendously. Primarily, it will give us a chance to spend more time individually with more boys. In other words, we can now double our instruction time and follow more closely the progress of each boy in our program."

Fontenot said that Daniels' main duties would revolve around being in charge of the sophomores — who up until this time could not be given as much consideration as was needed. And, this is the situation at all schools which have only one man supervising the basketball program.

Daniels will also assist Fontenot with the varsity and will be on hand at all varsity games.

FONTENOT HAD GIVEN the problem of competing with Shreveport schools much thought, even before he knew he would get an assistant coach, and he has some very definite, and very pertinent, views about the subject. "Right now," he said, "I feel like boys over here who are graduating seniors are equivalent to juniors at a Shreveport school. This has no reflection whatsoever on the boys, they just don't get the coaching and playing experience here that they do there."

So now we have the question of why the boys there are getting better coaching and are learning quicker than boys over here? We may sound like the coaches here are doing a bad job, or that our coaches are not as qualified as those at Shreveport. However, we don't mean this at all because this is not the case.

The problems for our schools are many. And the biggest problem is that we don't have enough coaches. This is where we believe Ouachita has made a big step for progress.

Stepping Stone To Progress

But this is only a start for Ouachita, and we hope a stepping stone which will make others follow suit.

So, will the addition of an assistant coach make Ouachita, or any other school, a prep power? Not hardly, for there are other things as important, or more so, than an addition of coaches.

FROM WHERE WE SIT, it seems that probably the most important phase of teaching a boy how to play athletics of a top grade in high school is teaching a boy how to play the game before he reaches high school. In other words, a boy meeds proper training from the first moment he begins learning the game.

Therefore, it is of the utmost importance that we get adequate coaching for our "future stars." However, this doesn't necessarily mean that the boys should win every game in the junior or pee wee ranks. We feel this actually hurts youngsters more than it helps IF certain fundamental phases of the game are neglected while the coach concentrates on winning.

Here possibly is the key to the whole matter of our reaching a level to parallel that of our opponents. Spelled out simply, it means co-operation between the coaches of elementary and junior high athletes with high school coaches.

It is pretty well known that certain junior schools in our community feed certain high schools, which is legal and aboveboard. So why not captalize on this by having the junior coaches be familiar with the high school systems which the boys will eventually play under. It sounds reasonable to assume a boy will do much better in later years under a program he becomes familiar with while still a youngster.

ALSO, IT SEEMS THE JOB of the junior coaches should be that of concentrating on fundamentals and let the winning take care of itself.

By doing these things, we believe that our schools will soon be on a par, and have a chance at being better, than those who we must beat to gain recognition.

And, after all, our object in the Twin Cities is not only to learn how to play the game, but also to learn how to play well enough to win.

Orioles Boast Base Speed

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles were chewing the fat about potential speed on the base paths. And of all people, John Orsino, the 210-pound catcher, got into the act.

He bit the ball far enough Wednesday to make it all the way to third base — only his fourth triple in five major league seasons. But, of all things, he stole a base.

It prompted the press box announcer to remind the startled reporters:

"That was NOT the first stolen base of Orsino's career. He stole two in 1963."

The clubhouse talk about speed really centered on rookie outfielder Paul Blair, who also has a stolen base, and shortstop Luis Aparicio, the American League leading thief nine different years.

"Me and Blair lead the club in stolen bases," interrupted Orsiono. "I'm four games ahead of your record, Looie."

"It was a good slide, wasn't it, Sherm?" asked Orsino turning to coach Lollar.

"Quite a hole I opened up, too," agreed Orsino.

Seriously Manager Hank Bauer believes he may be able to put more pressure on the opposition this season with Blair leading off and Aparicio following him at the plate.

"One advantage of having those two batting behind each other is that you reduce the possibility of the double play," Bauer points out.

"And with one on base and the other at the plate, the fielders figure to be sorta shaky. And let's say they're on first and second with Boog Powell up.

"If he hits a long single — and I admit it's gotta be a long one — we got a 2-0 lead."

Celtics Shooting For 7th Straight NBA Title

BOSTON (AP) — It's out of the broiler and into the deep fat after their seventh straight National Basketball Association title Sunday against the Los Angeles Lakers.

One thing's for sure: the temperature can't be any hotter than it was in the Eastern Division championship clash with the Philadelphia 76ers, a battle that ended Thursday night with a nerve-fraying 110-109 Celtics' triumph.

The Lakers, with Jerry West wearing out scorekeepers on his basket bombardment, won the Western division title by taking four of six games from the Baltimore Bullets.

The meeting with West, who averaged 46.3 points per game in the Baltimore playoffs, and his playmates from the Pacific shores could be a letdown after the shuddering series with the 76ers.

The Celtics' victory Thursday night actually came in the last five seconds and here was the situation:

The 76ers scored with five seconds remaining to pull within one point at 110-109. The superb Bill Russell was to toss the ball inbounds. But, as he tried to loop the ball in, it struck a wire supporting the backboard and the ball automatically went back to the 76ers. Philly called time out to devise a play for that one last shot but John Havlicek swiped Hal Greer's inbounds pass, flicked the ball to Sam Jones who dribbled away the vanishing seconds.

There's no Wilt Chamberlain on the Laker squad. The 7-1 Philly pivotman probably played what was his greatest series against the Celtics and almost realized a career ambition: to play on an NBA championship outfit.

And with all-pro forward Elgin Baylor recuperating from surgery on an injured knee, the Lakers will be far from peak strength. Even with Baylor in the line-up during the regular season, the Lakers won only three of 10 games against the Celtics.

The Celtics' job, then, is to stop West, who was second to Chamberlain in league scoring during the season. Defensive ace Tom Sanders will probably draw that unenviable assignment but the rest of the Celtics may be able to pitch in, what with Baylor absent.

Of the Celtics, only cornerman Tom Heinsohn is below par. He has been on an antibiotic diet to ward off catching the throat infection his wife came down with.

The second game of the four-of-seven series will be played at the Boston Garden Monday night, then the teams head for Los Angeles for games Wednesday and Friday. It's back to Boston on April 25 if a fifth game is needed.

Report From Washington

Prevailing Opinion Is That Medicare Will Pass Senate

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS
World's Washington Bureau

Prevailing opinion in Washington is that Medicare legislation will pass the Senate in essentially the same form as it passed the House of Representatives.

It could, of course, be passed by the Senate in exactly the language of the House bill. This, however, is a long-shot possibility. The House passed the bill under a closed rule — that is one prohibiting the general offering of amendments on the floor. This it went through exactly as it had been fashioned by the Ways and Means Committee.

Under the rules of the Senate there will be amendments offered from the floor, but the Aministration forces may have the votes to defeat all such amendments.

OPEN HEARINGS

There will also be open hearings before the Senate Finance Committee, headed by Senator Harry F. Byrd, Virginia, who opposes the legislation. While the House Ways and Means Committee was calling in witnesses, from time to time, from January to late March these witnesses were heard in executive sessions.

A good guess is that despite

the fact the Senate Finance Committee will hold open hearings, that the Republicans there will offer a substitute bill, just as was done in the House, and there will be amendments presented from the floor, Medicare will become law not later than July.

It will go into effect on July 1, 1966. Thus the Social Security Administration will have a year to set up the machinery to operate it. The setting up of that machinery will be a tremendous task. Said Chairman Wilbur D. Mills of the Ways and Means Committee:

"In developing this comprehensive health insurance program the Committee on Ways and Means was mindful that a program is no better than its administration. The committee proposals reflect a conviction that the administrative challenges brought by this new program can be met by the combined efforts of voluntary organizations and the Government. The Government part will fall mainly to the Social Security Administration."

Mills went on to explain the task before the Social Security Administration in advance planning for bringing more than 18,000,000 people 65 years of age or older under the health insurance programs.

"Extensive negotiations will be required to complete agreements and financial arrangements with fiscal intermediaries, insurance carriers, State agencies and others," Mills said. "Broad - scale consultation will also be required with professional organizations representing the Nation's hospitals and others who furnish reimbursible health services. Operational policies and record keeping procedures will have to be worked out on a scope never before undertaken in the health field."

BIGGER STAFF

Greatly increased staffing of the Social Security Administration will have to be provided for and organizational changes made. The Social Security Administration now has a staff of 36,000 people and a nation-wide network of over 600 offices.

Every service available to the very poor will also be available to the very wealthy under Medicare as it passed the House. This is a departure from the principle of other Federal programs such as Federal housing, veterans pensions, aid to dependent children and others.

One of the arguments made against it was the cost to younger workers for care of individuals who have reached 65. A young person starting to pay Social Security and Medicare at the age of 21 in 1966 would have to pay until the year 2010 before reaching the retirement age of 65.

The Social Security Tax now is $174 per year each for employer on a base of $4800. The tax will rise in eight stages over the next 21 years and in 1987 the employer and the employee each would be paying $369.60 on a base of $6,600.

Said Representative John B. Anderson, Republican, Illinois: "When you consider what the House bill is going to impose on every wage earner in the way of a tax and project this from age 21 to age 65, it is shocking to find that the total social security tax on wage earners is going to rise to the unbelievable height of 11.2 percent. If this same wage earner were to keep these funds and invest them at an interest rate of 4 percent, compounded semi-annually, which incidentaly is today's prevailing interest rate, this employees contribution under the provisions of the House bill will amount to the fantastic sum of $81,000."

SHORT ITEMS

MONEY DRIVES — Republicans are hoping to realize $300,000 at the $500-a plate Salute dinner to Senate Minority Leader Everett Dirksen on April 29. The money will go toward the G.O.P. efforts to increase its Senate majority in the 1966 election. Democrats are figuring on $1,000,000 net at a dinner in honor of Representative Michael J. Kirwan, Ohio, and Senator Warren G. Magnuson, Washington, chairman respectively of the Democratic Congressional and Senatorial Campaign Committees, on June 3. Democrats big election effort will be to hold on to the extra 38 seats they won in the House of Representatives in 1964. It is those 38 votes that are making the way of the Johnson program so smooth in Congress.

MILES-LONG LAW — Medicare bills in their long journey through Congress have been referred to as King - Anderson or Anderson-King bills. Their principal sponsors were Representative Cecil Rhodes King of California and Senator Clinton P. Anderson of New Mexico, both Democrats. King, a 24-year member of the House, began introducing medicare legislation, soon after his election to Congress. Anderson has about as long a legislative association with such bills. King's name is no longer mentioned in connection with the vastly expanded bill which passed the House. Already it is referred to by some as the Mills bill because Representative Wilbur D. Mills, Arkansas, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, was its principal architect. There is the possibility that it could end up being called the Mills-Long law. Senator Russell B. Long, Louisiana, Assistant Democratic Senate Leader, is second - ranking member of the Senate Finance Committee. Some historians doubt any man's name will long cling to medicare. Famous laws named after men generally were those dealing with the tariff. A notable exception was the Sherman Anti-Trust Law, named after Senator John Sherman of Ohio.

WILL KUCHEL RUN? —Senator Thomas Kuchel will withhold for several months an answer on whether or not he will seek the Republican nomination for Governor of California. But most opinion in Washington is that he will not. Kuchel likes his post as Assistant Minority Leader and is in line as the successor to Senator Everett M. Dirksen, Illinois, who is expected to retire when his term expires in January, 1969. Also some Californians are telling Kuchel he is needed in Washingtoa to handle water problems affecting California.

CASH WITH 1040s — Treasury officials are confident that when letters which contained all those 1040 income tax forms which came in the last April 15 mailings are opened it will be shown that the number of taxpayers who reported themselves without cash to pay had been greatly overestimated. At one time there were estimates that there would be a shortage of $1,000,000,000 in the $5,000,000,000 which usually come at the Deadline. Internal Revenue Service is sure it won't be anywhere near that amount.

DEAR ABBY

She Doesn't Realize He's Giving Her Love

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have been married twice. My first husband showered me with love, but he seldom worked, and we lived on what I earned, plus borrowed money, for six years. All I got from him were three kids, a stack of bills and more loving than I wanted. My second husband is up there in years. He works hard and doesn't bother me with any loving at all. I am only 26, but I think I am in a position to tell other women that all that love stuff is way overrated, and if I never get any more than a goodnight kiss on the cheek I will be satisfied. You hear and read so much about "love" that I wish you would print this for girls who think they have to have a man.

SATISFIED

DEAR SATISFIED: You are confusing "love" with sexual fulfillment. Many people live contentedly without the latter—but life is empty and meaningless without "love."

DEAR ABBY: You women are all alike, aren't you? "ALL THROUGH" whined that she had been hurt so bad by her husband she will never get over it. All he said after she had just been through the most excruciating pain ever inflicted on a human, while giving birth to their second girl, was, "You're never going to have a boy, are you?" And you, DEAR ABBY, gave her typically womanish advice: "Tell HIM he can have the next baby."

This husband was probably just kidding. And if he chose a poor time for a joke he should have been excused. After all, while his wife was having the baby, he spent hours praying and worrying, and his judgment was not the best. Women today are so doped up during childbirth that they do not experience anywhere near the pain their ancestors felt. Furthermore, the woman who does suffer a little pain three or four times in her life, and wears her martyrdom like a badge, gives ME a pain. No man can know the exact degree of pain a woman feels in childbirth, but I seriously doubt that it is any more painful to her than a kick in the groin is to a man. And WE feel that pain a heck of a lot more than three or four times in our lifetimes. Sincerely,

ALL THROUGH WITH "ALL THROUGH"

DEAR ALL THROUGH: Aw, come on. I've had two children, and I'd rather have a kick in the groin any time.

DEAR ABBY: Why are parents considered selfish and inconsiderate when they refuse to burden themselves with debts in order to give an elaborate wedding reception for their daughter?

We have always lived within our means and are willing to give her a reception that will not necessitate floating a loan, but she is not satisfied with the kind of reception we can afford. Her father makes less than $7000 a year and there are younger children to educate. I would appreciate your views on this.

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: Sensible people do not spend more than they can afford on anything. And that includes wedding receptions. You need not apologize to anyone for refusing to go into debt.

DEAR ABBY: Sometime ago you answered a question as to the time and place for women to wear hats. This interested me as I have never felt completely dressed without a hat. I can't understand the women in my church (Baptist) who have nice clothes, but they don't wear hats to church. (Especially our pastor's wife.) I think when a woman gets all dressed up for church she should wear a hat. It sort of shows respect. Are you with me?

ONE HAT HATTIE

DEAR HATTIE: Personally, I like to see women under hats in church, but I am quite sure that God couldn't care less—as long as they're there.

Mrs. H. H. Land Reviews Brand Book For Coterie

"The Ballad Mongers" by Oscar Brand was reviewed by Mrs. H. H. Land for the Musical Coterie on April 9. The club met in Mrs. Land's home on McKinley Avenue at 3:30 p.m., and enjoyed coffee on the screened porch overlooking a large camellia and azalea garden. Bouquets of azaleas and camellia arrangements were used at focal points in the house.

Mrs. Noland Harvey presented the hymn of the month. During the business session, a report on the State Music Federation Convention was given by Mrs. James Murphy and Mrs. Henry Whitfield, who attended the convention last week in Lafayette as the club's representatives. Mrs. Murphy presented Mrs. Tex Kilpatrick with an Award of Merit given at the convention for outstanding observance of National Music Week. Mrs. Kilpatrick was chairman of National Music Week activities for Musical Coterie last year.

In tracing folk music up to the major industry it is today, Mr. Brand recalled that the first folk group organized with any "discipline" as to the art form was "The Weavers" in 1947. Other folk singing personalities and their individual styles were mentioned, such as Burl Ives, Harry Belafonte, and more recent popular arrivals such as the Cumberland Trio, Brothers Four, etc.

Brand thinks the college craze for folk music groups has sophisticated the art too much, but that folk singers such as Joan Balz are among the few that are really creative in the art.

Mrs. Land introduced some of the Coterie members to perform the various examples of earliest American songs she discussed. Mrs. F. V. Allison sang the Jewish chant "Ehod Mi Yode'a"; Mrs. Edward F. Hayward Jr. sang the German folk song, "Ach Du Lieber Augustin"; Mrs. Elmer Marshall, accompanied by Mrs. H. G. McDonald, sang "Down in the Valley," a folk song of English origin, but preserved in the mountains of Kentucky, and "He's Got the Whole World in His Hands," a spiritual that developed on Southern plantations from an English - African origin.

Closing the program was Bragiotti's Variations on Yankee Doodle, played by Mrs. McDonald on the piano. This humorous composition employs the various styles of composers such as Bach, Beethoven, Chopin and Gershwin, using the "Yankee Doodle" theme.

Coterie members attending the meeting were Mrs. Allison, Mrs. Leroy Anspach, Miss Emy-Lou Biedenharn, Mrs. James G. Caldwell, Mrs. R. B. Gandy, Mrs. Harvey, Mrs. Hayward, Mrs. Kilpatrick, Mrs. Land, Mrs. Marshall, Mrs. Kedwick Martin, Mrs. McDonald, Mrs. Murphy, Miss Gertrude Sandrock, Mrs. Briscoe Trousdale Jr., Mrs. Jack W. White, Mrs. Willey.

Party Round Continues For Beverly Bartlett

Guests arriving for dinner at the Lester Higgins home 2214 Redwood Drive, Wednesday evening approached the entrance through a candieleighted walkway. The occasion was a prenuptial compliment to Miss Beverly Bartlett who will be married May 7 to Lt. William D. Fritz Jr.

Hostesses for dinner party were Mrs. Higgins and Mrs. James E. Kelley.

A large white wedding bell decorated with white satin streamers and lilies of the valley centered the front entrance, greeting guests when they arrived at 7:00 p.m.

The entrance table held a cupid figurine with an arrangement of white chrysanthemums and leather leafed fern.

In the dining room, the table was covered with a white imported cutwork cloth. The centerpiece was a large milk glass compote with white stock and blue and white chrysanthemums, leather leafed fern and puffs of white net. On either side were matching milk glass candelabra with white tapers entwined with greenery.

The individual tables held milk glass compotes with white chrysanthemums centered with white candles.

Arrangements of white azaleas were used throughout the reception rooms.

Miss Bartlett wore a sky-blue silk model, fashioned with a bell skirt and an insert of imported Irish lace at the neckline. Her corsage, a gift of her hostesses, was of blue chrysanthemums with pearl hearts and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Bartlett chose a Dior blue linen sheath with lace applique trim. Her corsage was of miniature white chrysanthemums entwined with net and white satin ribbons.

Mrs. Higgins and Mrs. Kelley presented Miss Bartlett with a silver tiered serving piece.

Present for the evening were Miss Sallie Hunt, Mr. Randy Cox, Miss Barbara Borgkvist, Mr. John Clema, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Standard, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Elmore, Mr. and Mrs. William G. Bartlett, Miss Bartlett, Mr. and Mrs. Lester E. Higgins and Mr. and Mrs. James E. Kelley.

Crystal Shower Fetes Miss Ethylen Wilson

A crystal shower honored Miss Ethylen Wilson, bride-elect of Thomas Rhodes Pixton, Saturday, April 10, between 4:30 and 6 p.m. at the Hal Barker home in Ruston. Guests were invited into the reception rooms by the hostess, Mrs. Barker, who presented them to the honoree and her mother, Mrs. Charles Wilson.

The honoree was wearing a trousseau ensemble of white and mint green polished brocade accented with a white rose corsage, a gift from the hostess. Mrs. Wilson was attired in a yellow silk textured ensemble with a yellow rose corsage. The hostess chose a mint green whipped cream which she complimented with a pink rose corsage.

Entwined ivy and burning mint green candles were noted on the table which held the bride's book. Inviting guests to register was Miss Glenda Bounds.

A delicate pink linen cloth covered the dining table which was centered with a crystal bowl holding multi-hued spring flowers. Mrs. W .T. Turner ladled mint green punch from a colonial pink punch bowl, and Mrs. Marjorie Forrester assisted in the courtesies. Tea girls were Miss Judy Mitchell and Miss Peggy Brooks.

The mint green motif was used in the gift area, where Mrs. Phillip Paul invited the guests to view the display.

Lake Bruin Home Scene Of Postnuptial Buffet

For this occasion Mrs. Fowler wore a princess styled dress in sunshine yellow linen accented with a white orchid corsage.

How To Deck Easter Bonnet With Flowers

A straw beach hat, easily purchased at any variety store, makes an interesting, inexpensive, and very suitable container for Easter flowers.

The Society of American Florsive, and very suitable container for Easter flowers.

The Society of American Florists suggests that, by tucking a small bowl to hold the water in the crown of the hat, you will have an amusing and extremely attractive container to use during the Easter Holidays. After all, hats are an integral part of the holiday. (It might be pointed out for the economy minded that the hat will be perfectly suitable for its original use come summer!)

Almost any informal flowers may be selected for an arrangement of this type. The more formal flowers — the orchids, the gardenias, the lovely roses — should be saved for wearing with Easter outfits and other less casual occasions.

The Society points out that mixed flowers of the more old fashioned types are available at professional florist shops at this time of year. Tulips, feathery lilies-of-the-valley, dainty grape hyacinths, blue flags, and deeptoned violets might be a good combination in this dainty Easter Bonnet bouquet.

The color scheme, of course, may vary with the mood and the colors of the room in which the bouquet will be featured. The tulips might be white, a dainty pink, or for a more startling effect, scarlet blossoms might be selected. Whatever the flowers chosen, the main thing to remember is that the whole arrangement should have an unstudied air about it. There's no place for tight lines and stilted arrangements here.

The Society tells us to be daring in the selection of a wide number of varieties of flowers. It feels that almost all flowers go well together. After all, Mother Nature combines all manner of blossoms out of doors. There is no reason any blooms that are bought at the local florist shop should not be combined in the same seemingly casual manner.

DESK CLIPS

Ordinary clip-type clothespins make good desk clips. Just glue letters to clothespins to spell out "bills," "letters" or whatever, then spray with paint.

Double Ring Ceremony Unites Couple

Baskets of pink gladioli and candelabra holding lighted tapers decorated the altar of Foster Drive Pentecostal Church for the wedding Saturday, April 10 of Miss Lorene Barnhill, Baton Rouge and Lawrence Dale Lavigne, of Gonzales. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Barnhill of Olla and the groom is the son of Mrs. Emile Lavigne Sr. and the late Mr. Lavigne of Gonzales.

Rev. W. W. Sistrunk performed the double ring vows at 2 p.m. following a program of wedding music by Mrs. A. J. Nickens, organist and Mr. Nickens, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a regal gown of imported silk organza with long tapered sleeves. The scoop neckline was sculptured in pearl encrusted Alencon lace. Matching lace scallops created a flowering border around the redingote skirt that drifted into a chapel sweep train. Her bouffant veil of silk illusion was attached to a princess crown of pearls and lace leaves.

MRS. LAWRENCE DALE LAVIGNE

Miss Patricia Ann Barnhill, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Mrs. Allison Meche, sister of the groom and Miss Jan Watts, niece of the groom. They wore dresses of pink peau de soie styled with three - quarter sleeves, sweetheart necklines and bell shaped skirts.

Flower girl was Darlene Lavigne, niece of the groom, and ring bearer was Graylon Buratt, nephew of the groom.

Billy Norwood served as best man and groomsmen were Bobby Meche and Larry Dale Lavigne, nephew of the groom. Ushers were Welton Bilbo and Paul Sistrunk.

After a wedding trip to Natchez the couple will be at home in Baton Rouge. The bride was graduated from LaSalle high school in Olla and Mr. Lavigne graduated from St. Amant high school in Gonzales and Draughn Business College in Baton Rouge.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Hand Stains Come Off With Cuticle Remover

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

I do a lot of gardening and yard work, but I seem to be all thumbs if I wear gloves so my hands get badly stained.

I have found that cuticle remover will remove grass stains, sweet potato stains, and the stains in the little cuts I get when slicing vegetables without using a cutting board.

Cuticle remover will also remove nicotine stains from your fingers.

Spring Gardener

This is absolutely so. And it's inexpensive, too.

And did you know that it would also remove grease stains from the crinkles on husband's or son's hands after they have worked on an automobile?

Pour some on, rub and massage the hand, let sit a few minutes wipe on tissue then wash as usual.

Thanks for reminding me, hon.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I discovered an easy way to make a long, fancy skirt for a baby bassinet. . .

I found some very inexpensive cafe curtains at a close-out sale. I bought two, identical sets that were made to slip over a rod (not the ones with rings on the top).

I strung one-half-inch elastic through the top hem and stretched it around the basket.

I then attached a small safety pin to one end of the elastic and made a small loop in the other end. This way the two ends can be hooked together and the skirt can be removed easily when need be.

And, if one wanted to make the skirt fancier . . curtains of nylon or dotted swiss, or any sheer material, could be hung alone or over the colored ones. These sheer curtains could be tacked to the ones underneath-thus using only one elastic.

Pat Rockwell

FROM HELOISE'S KITCHEN:
Dear Little Dolls . . .

Never, never, never leave a silver - plated spoon or any other silverware in any kind of salad which contains egg, nor when you eat fried or scrambled eggs for breakfast.

Why? It turns them dark!

If you do not have time to wash it immediately (this prevents it from turning dark) then fill a glass or fruit jar with water and dunk (this means get it-under-water) it into water and it will not turn dark.

This saves you from cleaning those awful marks from knives, forks and spoons!

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Put your carton of cigarettes in the deep freeze and you will be surprised how fresh the cigarettes will keep — they will not freeze!

Mary C.

Dear Heloise:

Can you please tell us how to get those annoying sticky marks off our skin after we remove adhesive tape or adhesive bandage?

Mother Hubbard

Dear Mother Hubbard:

To remove the marks from adhesive tape, sponge with acetate or safe cleaning fluid.

Natch, the sticky stuff isn't on the abrasion but near it. Don't put finger nail polish remover or cleaning fluids on any open abrasion.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Tell your readers to make their own shakers for their many needs by punching holes with an ice pick in the top of any empty, handy, clean, small pickle jar or baby food jar!

This works wonders for powdered sugar, especially when you use it on cookies.

One of the best hints I have ever found is to add a teaspoon of granulated sugar with the powdered sugar when sprinkling it on cookies. This helps the powdered sugar shake out better!

What It's Like To Be Midwest Flood Refugee

EDITOR'S NOTE: Cecil Schwartz, 47, and his family rent a home in St. Paul on the east bank of the Mississippi River. The area has been flooded by the Mississippi River forcing the family to evacuate. Schwartz, a former farm and construction worker is taking part in a federal retraining program. In the following dispatch, Schwartz tells in his own words what it's like to be one of the 31,000 flood refugees in the upper Midwest.

As Told To
United Press International

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI)—I went down to look at the house and I couldn't find the garage anywhere.

Before we got flooded out Sunday, I tied a big cable around the garage and hooked it around a tree. My neighbors' garages are still there, but I don't know what happened to mine.

I had two stoves in there and some tools and about half a truckload of lumber. I guess the garage must have busted up because there's nothing left there.

I don't think 1965 is my year.

I'm going to learn to be a general maintenance man on the President's training program. I took the test but I haven't started taking the course yet.

We've been living on my wife's unemployment check. She's going to be trained too, but she hasn't taken the test yet.

One of my boys broke his leg. Then the other one got sick and I was sick most of January. Then they started pulling my teeth and I felt lousy.

Now when I start feeling better, the flood comes.

We rent the house from Mary Fish and we've been living there for about eight years. Mary's been having a tough time lately, too. Her husband died a little over a week ago and now there's seven feet of water in the house.

I decided we'd better get out of the house last Sunday afternoon when the water was up to the front steps. I knew we couldn't spend the night there.

The Red Cross took most of the heavy stuff away and I put the furniture and other things on the second floor and in the attic. My married daughter took some of our clothes over to her place and we got more in the car.

We've been living in the West St. Paul Armory with some other people who have been flooded out. But I'm going to have to find an apartment around our neighborhood somewhere so my 13-year-old boy, Terry, and 8-year-old Tommy can go to their school.

I don't know when the water will go down, but I'm sure it will take about six weeks to clean the house up and fix it. Those houses down there are going to need new floors and plaster.

I don't know where I'm at.

At Harlem Quarters

Labor Movement Silent On Red Party Founding

NEW YORK (AP) — The Harlem headquarters of The Progressive Labor Movement maintained an official silence Friday on reports that a new U.S. Communist party is being founded at a closed-door convention here.

The New York Times reported Thursday that a new party, committed to the Red Chinese "hard" line, is being sponsored by the PLM, whose top leaders have often been connected with leftist causes.

A spokesman at the Harlem headquarters said no information would be given out until some time Sunday afternoon. He confirmed, however, that leaders of the movement are attending a conference at the Hotel Albert.

The Times said a convention at the Albert began Thursday, to last through Sunday.

The PLM, which has headquarters in Harlem, was prominent during last summer's riots. One of its leaders, William Epton, is a self-proclaimed Communist who has said he leans toward the Red Chinese.

Epton, 33, was arrested last July for trying to lead a protest march up Lenox Avenue in the wake of the riots. The march had been banned by the Police Department.

At that time, he said he had left the Communist party of the U.S.A. three years before because it "is no longer a revolutionary party."

He said he became interested in communism in high school, studied it seriously, and became convinced that "the science on Marxism-Leninism had an answer for the problems confronting the world, particularly black men." Epton is a Negro.

He faces a charge of criminal anarchy for allegedly advocating the violent overthrow of New York State's government. He was expelled last August from the Negro-American Labor Council, headed by A. Philip Randolph.

Johnson Soon Must Decide On Relations With Nasser

By William B. Dickinson, Jr.
Editorial Research Report

WASHINGTON — President Johnson soon must decide whether it is in the national interest to complete a surplus food agreement with the United Arab Republic. Whatever his decision, debate will continue on the wisdom of giving American aid to a nation headed by a man who has told the United States to "go jump in the Mediterranean."

The man is Gamal Abdel Nasser. At age 46 he is riding the crest of a wave of popularity both at home and throughout the Arab world. He is an authentic—albeit strident — force for Arab nationalism. As President of a nation of 30 million people, he has devoted himself to substantial economic and land reforms that have endeared him to the Egyptian fellahin, or peasants. In a recent national plebiscite, he ran unopposed for a new six-year term as President.

Yet relations between the U. A. R. and the United States are at low ebb. Nasser's contemptuous comments about American aid, the burning of a U. S. Information Agency library in Cairo, and open U. A. R. support of arms shipments to anti-Western rebels in the Congo have combined to make continuation of aid appear directly contrary to this country's interests. After a dozen years in power, Nasser seems to be risking his non - alignment policy by establishing extensive ties with the Soviet Union and its satellites. Nineteen Communist delegations visited Cairo in a six-week period early this year; trade deals were concluded with most of them.

KEY OBJECTIVE

A key objective of American foreign policy since World War II has been to keep the Soviet Union from gaining a dominant position in the Middle East. What policy - makers in Washington now have to decide is whether it is still possible to make foreign aid programs an effective counter to Soviet influence in that highly strategic region.

Since 1952, the United Arab Republic has tapped both East and West for about $3 billion in aid — an astonishing feat for so small a nation. The American contribution has amounted to about $1.2 billion, mostly in surplus foods. By one estimate, six of every ten loaves of bread eaten in Egypt today are baked with U. S. - supplied wheat or flour. But in its first foreign policy action after the 89th Congress convened, the House last Jan. 26 voted, 204 - 177, to stop these sales to Nasser.

A few weeks later the White House was able to convince Congress that the President should have authority to complete the surplus sales agreement with the U.A.R. if he found it in the national interest. The President was left free to deliver $37 million worth of commodities — all that remained of $432 million worth that the United States agreed three years ago to sell to the U. A. R. for local currency. But it still is not certain that the existing agreement will be completed.

Even if it is, the President will have to go back to Congress for approval if he decides to press for an American contribution to Nasser's second Five - Year Plan, which comes into effect on July 1. Secretary of State Dean Rusk recently told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that the United States wishes to assist Cairo in its enormous task of social and economic development. But he added that there was "plainly an inadequate basis of understanding at the present moment."

NEW PLAN

Nasser has drawn up his new plan on the assumption that there will be no more American wheat deals. He contends that the United States has sought to use its aid programs to dictate Egyptian foreign policy. Speaking in Cairo last Dec. 23 with a high-ranking Soviet delegation at his side, the U. A. R. strongman declared: "The Americans want to give us aid and dominate our policy. I say we are sorry. We are ready to cut our rations and minimize the daily consumption so that we keep our independence . . . We are people with dignity, and we are not ready to sell it even for a billion pounds."

Yet Nasser may be compromising his independence by leaning too heavily on Communist-bloc aid. Western observers wonder how much longer he will be able to hold to a "neutral" course in world politics. At the same time, few experts except Nasser to take his country down the road to communism as Fidel Castro did in Cuba. His political ideal is not Castro but Tito of Yugoslavia.

Pill Praised

Doctors Lectured On Birth Control

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The relative advantages of two birth control methods — the pill and the intrautering device — were outlined to 3,000 family doctors Friday.

Dr. Edris Rice-Wray of Mexico City's Association Pro-Salud Maternal said women resort to abortion but would prefer to prevent pregnancy.

She said that of 1,000 women in Mexico who sought family planning advice, nearly one-third admitted having one to 20 abortions. Mexico City clinic studies indicated 100 per cent effectiveness of 14 contraceptive compounds when taken according to instructions, she said.

Dr. Rice-Wray scoffed at the idea that uneducated women might fail to follow instructions. The majority of clinic patients, she said are from the low-income group, many of them illiterate, and yet they generally are more faithful users than university graduates.

She said several million women throughout the world are using the pill and no harmful effects of any kind have been shown in exhaustive laboratory and clinical studies.

Dr. Rice-Wray joined Dr. Alan Guttmacher of Planned Parenthood of America in a panel discussion at the closing session of the American Academy of General Practice annual scientific assembly.

Dr. Guttmacher described new contraceptive devices of plastic or stainless steel that are fitted into the uterus where he said they may be left several years.

He said the device "is a highly effective means of contraception, probably only second to the pill in its ability to protect against impregnation.

"Doctors are not sure yet how it works," Dr. Guttmacher said, "but there is no doubt that the intrauterine device is a highly acceptable method of birth control, and for 80 out of 100 patients it approaches the ideal method."

"The body will tolerate either polyethylene or stainless steel indefinitely without tissue reaction," he said, estimating some of the devices can be bought in large numbers for as little as six cents each.

"India hopes to insert a million devices in the course of the current year," Dr. Guttmacher said.

Quakers Begin Weekend Vigil

NEW YORK (AP) — A silent weekend vigil dedicated to the belief that all violence is wrong was begun by Quakers in Times Square shortly after noon Friday.

Fifty persons stood on the traffic island at 43rd Street and Broadway in what the Religious Society of Friends has planned as an Easter-Passover display to last until 5 a.m. Sunday.

Office Hopes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Office of Education hopes that local and state educational agencies which stand to receive federal aid under the recently enacted school bill are making their project plans, even though Congress has not yet voted the money.

A spokesman said Friday that federal planning is under way on an [illegible] desire, but the details [illegible] to be worked out.

Opinions Differ

Active Congress Takes Vacation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 89th Congress was embarked on its annual Easter vacation Friday. Everyone agreed it had accomplished more in three months than some do in a year, but some party opinions differed on whether it was good or bad.

Democrats used such words as "historic" to describe the record so far. President Johnson called it "without equal or close parallel" in modern times.

House Republican Whip Leslie C. Arends of Illinois conceded that "We're doing a lot of things." He added, though: "But I'm not sure all of 'em are good."

And House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford Jr. of Michigan said the House had been the victim of "political karate and presidential arm-twisting." He said the rejected GOP alternatives to some of the measures that have been enacted would have given better results at less cost.

At any rate, here's the record that congressmen can reflect on while they're vacationing until April 26:

A general school aid bill, the first in history, has been enacted. There is a new economic development program for the poverty-weary Appalachian mountain region. The House has passed — and the Senate is sure to — a massive medical care plan for the aged. The new voting rights bill is ready for early action in both the House and Senate.

Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., called this legislative progress "remarkable." He compared the first 100 days of the 89th Congress to the famous first 100 days of the 73rd, when President Franklin D. Roosevelt, under near - panic conditions, rammed much of the New Deal through to enactment.

In addition to the headline-making bills enacted so far, there has been progress in other areas.

The House and Senate already have passed, but in differing forms, a constitutional amendment to keep a vice president always on hand in case he is needed, and to assure he can take charge temporarily while the president is ill.

Other "Great Society" bills have moved forward in one House or the other. The betting now favors passage later this year of measures to expand the anti-poverty program, combat water pollution, revive the area redevelopment program and give it new money, curb illegal sale of pep pills, and cut excise taxes (probably by more than the President asked).

SNOW FLURRIES will fall today in parts of the northern plateau and northern plains into portions of the upper Mississippi valley and upper Great Lakes. There will be showers in northern and central Rockies, rain and showers in central plains and middle Mississippi valley with showers also in the lower Great Lakes. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Considerable Risk

Red Missile Sites Pose U.S. Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air strikes probably would have only a temporary effect in preventing antiaircraft missiles sites from going into operation in North Viet Nam.

That is because there is very little permanent construction at such sites. The Communists likely could move their equipment and prepare another launch base in a relatively short time.

If the United States waited until the Surface To Air Missiles — SAMs — were in place, the risk of an attempted knockout would be considerable. It might mean coming in at low level over an area heavily defended by radar-controlled antiaircraft guns.

Those complexes were installed by the Soviet Union the summer of 1962 and manned by them until last summer, when Cuban crews reportedly took over. Officials believe the Soviet Union still maintains a form of final control over firing of the missiles, possibly a mechanical curb exercised at each site.

Reconnaissance photographs of a typical SAM site in Cuba show six firing positions in a rough circle around a central guidance point.

About the only permanent-type construction are the concrete bases placed beneath the missile erectors and launchers.

Each of the firing positions and the guidance center is ringed by what appears to be earth walls.

The radar guidance is located in about a half-dozen vans and there are missile trailers spaced around the fringes of the site, in some cases protected by earthen revetments.

It appears that missile fuel is stored in tanks buried in the SAM site, which covers several acres.

The missile can reach out about 35 miles, and can strike aircraft at altitudes of 80,000 to 100,000 feet.

During the Cuban missile crisis of October 1962, a high-flying U2 reconnaissance plane was shot down, presumably by one of these missiles. The U2 flown by Gary Francis Powers over the Soviet Union in June 1960 also may have fallen victim to such a missile.

Although Fidel Castro has threatened to use these missiles against other U.S. reconnaissance planes, since the 1962 missile crisis U.S. Navy and Air Force aircraft have flown repeatedly over Cuba without being fired upon.

Holdup Men Invade Hotel; Loot Boxes

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Three holdup men invaded the fancy Sterling Hotel early Friday, looted its safe deposit boxes in half an hour, and escaped with a haul estimated at $130,000 in cash and jewels.

Miami Beach police, questioning each of the guests in an effort to determine the loss and develop leads, said the total could run much higher, but it would take days to pin down the figure.

In the first hours after the daring and well-planned robbery, statements from some of the shocked guests indicated the total loss might run as high as $500,000, police said.

But after an entire day of methodically checking each of the 75 or so persons with valuables in the hotel, Chief Rocky Pomerance said $30,000 in cash was missing and $100,000 in jewels were gone.

However, a handful of guests were not available for interviews, and some others could not value their missing pieces.

In the confusion of the first hours, one sobbing woman told a reporter that she had lost a $100,000 bracelet. But Pomerance said that police officers could not locate anyone with such a high loss.

The robbers, hitting the 150-room hotel at a time when it was packed with well-to-do guests here to observe the Passover season, entered the lobby at 2:40 a.m.

"A white man grabbed me, stuck a snub-nosed .38 in my chest, and spun me around so fast I didn't have a good look at him," night clerk Timothy Hayes told police.

Hayes was forced into an office behind the desk where Charles Jernigan, the night bell captain, was sitting. Both men were bound with adhesive tape but one robber held a gun on them while the others went to work on the deposit boxes.

"We could hear them exclaiming over what they found in the boxes," Hayes said. "One would say, 'Look what I've got!' and the other would reply, 'Just take a look at this one!'"

The robbers used hammers and metal punches to knock out the locks on the boxes. It was almost two hours after their departure before Hayes and Jernigan freed themselves and called police.

Guests milled around the lobby in the morning. Several women sobbed over their losses.

Sam Rosner, who owns the hotel with his father, urged newsmen and photographers to leave "before all these people get sick. I've already got one woman prostrate upstairs."

The guests were to observe the Passover, the ancient Jewish festival commemorating the exodus of the Israelites from Egyptian slavery, in the hotel's synagogue.

The Sterling features strict observance of the Jewish dietary laws. Its minimum rate for the Passover season is $50 a day.

Helen Doppelt of New York City said she had put $25,000 worth of jewels in a deposit box and several hundred dollars in donations for Yeshiva University of New York.

The hotel would not say whether contents of the boxes were insured, but such boxes in hotels are not normally covered.

Gov. McKeithen Decrees May 1 As Loyalty Day

A day to renew patriotism and foster Americanism has been set aside through a proclamation of Gov. John McKeithen and a resolution of the U. S. Congress as May 1.

The event, which will be known as Loyalty Day, is sponsored national by the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Locally Rodney J. Hobbs Post 1809, VFW, and its ladies auxiliary, will be in charge of the affair.

May 1 falls on a Saturday this year, and the VFW is campaigning for a flag to be flown at every home in the area on that day. They are also asking ministers in the Twin Cities to link loyalty and reilgious freedom in their sermons on the Sunday preceding Loyalty Day.

In the joint resolution issued by the 85th Congress and the president, it reads, "that the first day of May of each year is hereby designated as Loyalty Day and is to be set aside as a special day for the reaffirmation of loyalty to the United States of America and for the recognition of the heritage of American freedom."

VFW members began Loyalty Day as a direct, positive weapon against communism. They said that the Communists were using May Day for their hate demonstrations against the United States and even held parades in several cities.

North Viet Nam Protests Attacks

TOKYO (AP) — Communist North Viet Nam protested Friday to the International Control Commission on Viet Nam against U.S. and South Vietnamese air and naval attacks.

The protest said warships of "the United States and its henchmen intruded" into North Vietnamese waters Thursday and shelled Con Co Island. The note said many U.S. and South Vietnamese planes bombed and strafed the island Friday and hit "populated areas along communication lines in Quang Binh, Ha Tinh and Nghe An provinces."

The protest, distributed by the New China News Agency, added that U.S. and Vietnamese warships have attacked North Viet 21 times since Early April.

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Property damage caused by the March 28 earth quake in central Chile amounted to about $142 million, nearly three times the original government estimate, it was reported Friday.

Meeting Slated

BATON ROUGE (AP) — A meeting of the Louisiana Expressway Authority will be held in about 10 days to authorize a feasibility study of a proposed $325 million toll road from New Orleans to Shreveport, it was reported here Friday.

Roy T. Sessums, New Orleans, who Gov. John McKeithen has said he would like to see named chairman of the five-man authority, said the group will also meet to organize.

Sessums and James F. Brunson, Baton Rouge, have been named to the authority by the governor. Highway Director Arsene Stewart is a member by law.

Hike Expected

GAINESVILLE, Miss. (AP)— A possible increase in personnel at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Mississippi Test Operations site in Hancock County is expected to be announced within the next few weeks.

This statement was made by Marion Kent of the NASA director's office in Huntsville, Ala. Friday to a group of community leaders gathered at the MTO site here so they may prepare themselves for a greater influx of residents.

President Decides To Forego Trips Abroad

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson decided Friday to forego any trips abroad and to curtail visits of foreign dignitaries to the United States.

A statement from the Texas White House said: "In light of the congressional work load of the next two or three months and the situation in Viet Nam, the President is not planning any trips abroad and is keeping his schedule to a minimum."

There wasn't too much of a work load on the President this Friday. He signed a secondary bill, picked a new superintendent for the U.S. Air Force Academy and tapped a Negro general for high command in Korea, giving him the highest military rank ever attained by a member of his race.

Johnson and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara also looked over intelligence reports relayed from Washington.

With Johnson at the wheel of his white convertible, they all went for a drive Friday. There were stops at such points as the President's boyhood home in Johnson City and the Lewis Ranch, another Johnson property, between here and the main ranch house.

The men were in the front seat, the wives and Johnson's beagle, "Him," in back. All except "Him" were in sports clothes.

Along the highway near the Johnson ranch the alert is out for a demonstration march Saturday by "Students for Democratic Society," an organization with a branch at the University of Texas in Austin that is against Johnson's Viet Nam policy. They are supposed to meet in a roadside park near the ranch about 3 p.m.

The decision against presidential travel abroad at this time and a reduction in visits to the White House was announced by White House press secretary George E. Reedy at a press center in Austin.

The immediate effect was to confirm what already had been disclosed in Rawalpindi and New Delhi — the postponement until fall of White House visits by President Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan and Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri of India. Khan had been due April 25 and Shastri on June 2.

But Prime Minister Aldo Moro of Italy still will arrive in Washington on Tuesday, as scheduled, and so will President Chung Hee Park of Korea on May 17. White House officials indicated the presence of some Korean forces in Viet Nam was a factor in keeping the date with Park.

Furthermore, Reedy did not rule out an eventual trip to Europe for Johnson or an exchange of visits with Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin. These never had been scheduled formally, he said.

Reedy said there is nothing in particular in the congressional or Vietnamese situations that brought on the travel curb.

"Obviously," he said, "when conditions change we will reassess it."

In Washington, administration sources said Johnson has been devoting much time to the Viet Nam problem, and wants to be free to concentrate on it even more.

State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey said, "we certainly appreciate the agreeableness of both the prime minister and the president of India and Pakistan to meet the request" for a postponement of their trips.

Beneath the Washington diplomatic surface, however, there is evidence of unhappiness among the South Asians over the President's action.

Diplomatic sources, who asked not to be named, noted that Ayub had been due in the United States only a week hence, and that the Pakistani government had just issued his public itinerary. They noted, also, that the prospective visits by the Italian and Korean government heads are still on the White House schedule.

U.S. officials denied that Ayub's recent talks with the Red Chinese and the Russians, or Shastri's proposal for a halt in U.S. air attacks on North Viet Nam, caused the postponements.

Ayub visited Moscow recently and Shastri is going to the Soviet Union next month.

The changes in military assignments Johnson approved will install Lt. Gen. Thomas S. Moorman as superintendent of the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Bossier School Board To Appeal U.S. Mix Order

BENTON (Special) — An hour-long executive session of the Bossier Parish School Board Thursday night at Benton resulted in the unanimous approval of members to appeal a federal district court order to desegregate Bossier schools.

A number of visitors attended the executive session, but it was closed to members of the press. No public discussion of the matter was held.

The hearing on the matter may possibly be held next month, according to J. Bennett Johnston Jr., Shreveport attorney who is serving as the board's special counsel in the case. He said notice of the appeal to the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals will be served immediately and a quick hearing could be expected.

He added that the appeal would not stay the injunction against the board, and that the order for submission of a desegregation plan within 30 days was still in effect. The board has not discussed such a plan, he said, and does not plan to do so. The success of the appeal would mean dismissal of the suit, he pointed out, and no need for a desegregation plan.

Louis H. Padgett Jr., Bossier-Webster district attorney and counsel to the Bossier School Board, said the appeal would be based on the same contention overruled in federal district court — that the plaintiffs are residents of Barksdale Air Force Base and have no right to an education in Bossier Parish public schools.

Bossier School Board president Grover C. Adkins issued a statement after the meeting, inviting concerned citizens to contact the members of the board individually to discuss the matter, adding that legal questions would be left to the board's attorneys.

He anticipated no called session of the board prior to the next regular meeting on May 6, and said that there are no plans to discuss any sort of desegregation program before that time.

Favors Test

BATON ROUGE AP)—Rep. Taylor O'Hearn said Friday Gov. McKeithen favors some action by the May Legislature to enact a literacy test for voters.

The move would be in anticipation of a new federal voter registration law.

O'Hearn, Caddo Parish Republican, said his proposal for a standard literacy test based on New York's unchallenged voter registration procedure will be aired thoroughly at an open meeting next Thursday and Friday of a special Legislative Committee on Election Procedures.

The committee is headed by Rep. Salvador Anzelmo, Orleans.

Nikita S. Khrushchev

Unperson To Have Unbirthday Today

By RICHARD SPOVY
Editorial Research Report

AN UNPERSON would logically have an unbirthday — even a 71st unbirthday. Nikita Sergeyevich Krushchev, the Bible-quoting atheist, arrived at the Biblical span of three score and 10 years last April 17 amid a great hubbub of rumor and counter-rumor, of accusation and counter-accusation, of cocks crowing and doves cooing.

The fanfare was worldwide. In this country, for example, the Soviet information people furnished communications media with a full and rather rutilant biography. The introduction of the History of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, since quietly withdrawn from circulation, reminded the world of Khrushchev's "glorious 70th birthday," when Communists the world over heaped praise on him not only for his colossal achievements in the Soviet Union but also for his remarkable leadership of the world Communist movement.

Today Nikita Khrushchev is spending his autumn hours in a country house in the exclusive retreat of Usovo, in the pine forests on the Moscow River 25 miles north of the capital, on weekends enjoying the company of his six grandchildren and his great granddaughter. His birthday today will be observed only unofficially—by his family and perhaps by a few who have reason to remember and be grateful. For Khrushchev became an "unperson" when he was deposed last October, and though he seems vigorous and well when he makes his rare public appearances, these are seldom indeed.

NIKITA KHRUSHCHEV in his obscurity represents a new kind of Communist tragedian. He is neither a Duncan nor a Lear. He did not die in suspicious circumstances, nor did he disappear in the night. He was not sent to manage some remote power station. Actually he continues to be listed as a member of the Communist Party in good standing and, for the time, a member of the Central Committee of the Party and the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet or parliament.

He is supposed to be receiving a pension the equivalent of $330 a month, the top amount allowed a retired government official. His wife receives the $132 a month allowed the average pensioner.

Khrushchev is reported also to have the use of his dacha rent free, plus an apartment in Moscow's fashionable Lenin Hills, a staff of five employees, and a chauffeur-driven Chaika limousine. He hunts and raises prize hogs and experiments with corn seed sent by his American friend, Roswell Garst, the Iowa farmer.

But subscribers to the Soviet tear-off desk calendars were sent three new sheets. Two update the careers of new Premier Alexei Kosygin (Feb. 21 birthday) and new Communist Party First Secretary Leonid Brezhnev (born Dec. 19). The third indicates that never in Soviet history has anything noteworthy occurred on April 17, the date on which 71 years ago Nikita Khrushchev was born.

THE ENIGMA of Khrushchev's downfall is that it triggered no great policy change. The new rulers still talk up better times for the Russian consumer. The rift with Red China remains unhealed. Relations with the the West seem in general as cordial, if slightly less jolly and rose.

Still, like many of the mighty, Khrushchev has fallen. And what the Soviet history called only seven months ago a "true Leninist" has become a non-man, an unperson observing an unbirthday.

Campbell Named LP&L Division Superintendent

Charles A. Campbell, Louisiana Power & Light Company state meter supervisor in New Orleans, has been named division operating superintendent for the northern division with offices in West Monroe.

He succeeds J. H. Thatcher who will retire this fall.

Announcement of Campbell's promotion to the head engineering job in the company's northern division was one of several promotions announced recently by G. C. Rawls, president of the Company.

Campbell started work for the company in Ferriday in 1935 as a meter reader and serviceman. He worked as a meter repairman and specialist, engineer in West bank division metering, and as meter supervisor.

He is married to the former Miss Becky Wilder of Ferriday. They have three daughters — Betty, a chemist with the U. S. Food and Drug Administration in New Orleans; Virginia, a secretary in Tampa, Fla.; Carol a high school senior; and one son, Mike, 15.

A graduate of Ferriday High School, Campbell has completed several courses in electrical engineering, electronics courses at Loyola University, mathematics courses at Tulane University, and special studies in data processing. He also successfully completed an executive course at Georgia Tech, as well as the public utilities reports guide course.

Campbell is a member of the International Association of Electrical Inspectors, and is chairman of the George Wellman Chapter in New Orleans. He also is LP&L's representative on Edison Electric Institute meter and service committee, and his company's representative on the Utilities Radio Coordinating Association of Louisiana and Texas.
